Meeting Scheduled For Today

Meeting of Republican National Committee in Chicago Will Be Preliminary Skirmish in Battle That Will Mean Much to Future of Party. President's Wishes For Admission of Press Representatives Will Be Heeded as Far as Possible.

Chicago, June 6.—When the Republican national committee met here today to take the preliminary steps toward hearing and deciding contests for seats as delegates in the national convention, the first skirmish was fought in a battle that promises to become historic in the Republican party.

The desultory firing began immediately after the arrival of most of the members of the Republican national committee. Their entrance to the convention city was coincident with the arrival of Director William McKinley of the national Taft bureau and of Senator Joseph M. Dixon, manager of the Roosevelt campaign, and their corps of secretaries. McKinley and Dixon almost instantly issued bulletins respectively for Taft and Roosevelt. But with the national committee men on the field, little attention was paid to these statements of claims and counter-claims.

The information gathered from the most reliable sources is to the effect that at today's meeting of the national committee it will be demonstrated that about 35 of its members, and possibly more, will uphold the abominable of arrangements in its and that Senator Elihu Root of New York shall be the temporary chairman of the convention. It is even stated that 38 members of the committee will support Senator Root.

Go One Step Farther.
It was further stated, in view of Colonel Roosevelt's opposition to him, that there is a movement already inaugurated to make Senator Root the permanent as well as the temporary chairman of the convention.

Chairman Harry S. New of the subcommittee of arrangements had long talks with Senator Crane of Massachusetts, Charles F. Brooker of Connecticut, Franklin Murphy of New Jersey, William L. Ward of New York, Victor Rosewater of Nebraska, Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota and other influential men over the proposition of President Taft that newspaper correspondents should be present at the hearing of the contests before the national committee.

At the conference on this subject it was apparent that the national committee desires to acquiesce in President Taft's wishes, but they pointed out that there are nearly 600 newspaper correspondents on the field at this moment. It is probable that the national committee will decide to admit two representatives of each press association.

Farley Held For Murder, While

Columbus, O., June 6.—Jerome Farley, who has been held in connection with the shooting of Alvin Karpis in Franklin park on May 23, was set free by the Franklin county grand jury. An indictment charging first degree murder for the killing of Karpis was returned against Cecilia Farley, fiancée of Farley, who will be held under $1,000 bond as witness for the state.

White Women Victims of Outrage.

Washington, June 6.—One more step toward the third American intervention in Cuba was taken when 450 United States marines were sent into Cuban territory and a few hours later four battleships of the Atlantic fleet, carrying 1,000 marines, were ordered to proceed at once to Guantanamo.

The moves were accompanied by and in response to the most alarming reports of conditions in Cuba. A information received in Washington from numerous sources realized fear of the negro uprising. Depredations on American property by the negro rebels are increasing, and Americans in Cuba are now demanding that the United States afford protection to American interests, which the Cuban government has failed to provide.

The 450 marines now on Cuban soil in the Guantanamo district, under command of Colonel Lucas, are to be used at present only as guards for American sugar estates and other American properties. There is no intention of using the 1,000 additional marines which will be in Guantanamo within the next 24 hours for any other purpose. Reports that the American forces are to take part in the pursuit of and attack upon the negroes are false. This work is to be left to the Cuban soldiery.

Outrages Increase.
What is regarded as one of the most sinister phases of the situation in eastern and southern Cuba, as it has developed in the last few days, is the increase in the number of brutal attacks on white women. Four separate instances of such outrages were reported to the state department. All occurred in Oriente province, which from the first has been the principal field of operations of the negroes.

In one case the home of a former high official of the provincial government was entered by a band of negroes. The father and his son were bound by the marauders, who then outraged the mother and two daughters of the family in the presence of the two men. The son, succeeding in breaking his bonds, was killed in cold blood. Though no American women have been attacked thus far, fear holds sway in every American family resident in the affected regions.

Teethache May Prove Fatal.
Zanesville, O., June 6.—J. K. Geddes, manager of the O. R. O. branch of the Pennsylvania railroad, is thought to be dying of erysipelas. He had a tooth pulled several days ago and an abscess formed.

HEADS DEMOCRATIC TICKET

CONGRESSMAN
JAMES M. COX

Congressman James M. Cox, of Dayton, newspaper publisher and successful politician, who received, by the unanimous action of the Democratic convention at Toledo, the nomination for Governor.
Mr. Cox has been very successful as a political leader in the Third Congressional District, and is now serving his third consecutive term in the National House of Representatives.

WEAVING NET ABOUT DARROW IN BRIBE CASE

Prosecution Seeks to Show Morrison
Gave Darrow Bribes Money.

Los Angeles, June 6.—Clarence Darrow's trial on a charge of bribery fairly sizzled with excitement. Before court adjourned check No. 30, dated Aug. 21, 1911, and signed "Frank Morrison, Secretary, Special Number 5," for the sum of $10,000, was offered in evidence. The state asserts that the money used for bribery was obtained through this check, which Clarence Darrow indorsed.

The remittance sheet of the Anglo and London-Paris bank of San Francisco to the Riggs National bank in Washington, D. C., also was identified. It shows Tveitmoe cashed check No. 30, indorsed by Darrow.

Frank Morrison's checkbook showed the total of the McNamara defense fund sent to Darrow was $207,000 and that checks had been drawn against it amounting to $219,872.26.

Posse Captures Cracksmen.
Chicago Junction, O., June 6.—Posses resumed the search for the second of two bandits who blew the safe in the postoffice at North Fairfield. The other was captured here after a pursuit led by bloodhounds and a gun battle in which he was wounded in the face by a charge of buckshot.

Renominated For Lieutenant
Governor by Ohio Democrats.

He and Mrs. Lena Cusumano were found guilty of the murder of Frank Cusumano, the latter's husband, at Hull last year. Mrs. Cusumano's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by the executive council.

Shoots Wife and Self.
Millersburg, O., June 6.—Daniel Small, in a jealous rage, shot his wife at their home near Stillwell and, thinking he had killed her, turned the weapon on himself and fired a bullet into his head, dying soon after. The wife was wounded in the arm and back part of the head and her chances for recovery are slight.

Suspicion Now is Cast On Detective Wm. J. Burns

Noted Detective Said to Have Picked
Jurors in Land Case.

Washington, June 6.—A storm is about to break over Detective William J. Burns, former President Roosevelt, Postmaster General Hitchcock, Francis J. Heney and many other well-known men over the case of W. R. Jones, just pardoned after conviction of land frauds in Oregon.

The department of justice has original documents showing that Burns and his men canvassed all prospective jurors and picked out only such as were sure to convict.

It is expected the Roosevelt men will make charges that the alleged jury fixing is brought out at this time for political purposes.

Rex Is Indicted.

Columbus, O., June 6.—I. N. Rex, suspended chief clerk at the penitentiary, will have to fight before a court and jury to keep from becoming a fellow prisoner with those whose money he is alleged to have appropriated to his own use while a free man in the prison office. The grand jury reported an indictment for embezzlement against Mr. Rex. The money he is alleged to have taken amounts to more than $5,000.

For Auditor of State.

Toledo, O., June 6.—Mindful of every wish of Governor Harmon and confident that the popularity of Congressman James M. Cox of Dayton can be translated into votes in November, the Democratic state convention fulfilled predictions in adopting the unit rule, modified to the extent that it shall be effective only so long as Governor Harmon is in the race for president, nominated Mr. Cox for governor by acclamation and adopted a platform which contains radical planks.

After the hopeless fight of the Cuyahoga men and the Lentz-Garber-Durbin pioneer progressive element had been ended, it was a harmony convention. Harmon managers made good their claims to nearly 600 votes for the unit rule. The actual count was 597 for it to 357 against.

The result gives Governor Harmon a ringing indorsement at home and Ohio's 48 votes solid at Baltimore so long as he is in the race. Mayor Newton D. Baker of Cleveland will renew his fight in the national convention. A giant ovation greeted Congressman Cox when he accepted the nomination and promised a fight from now on until November to keep Ohio in the Democratic column. Mr. Cox declared himself a radical and indorsed without qualification the work of the constitutional convention.

The balance of the state ticket was completed as follows:

Representative Kennedy of Allen nominated Daniel H. Sullivan of Lima for lieutenant governor. John Weld Peck named Hugh L. Nichols. Mr. Sullivan withdrew his name and Mr. Nichols was named by acclamation.

Judge Scott Stahle of Ottawa county, amid restlessness and confusion which prevented his speech being heard, named Charles H. Graves for secretary of state, and he was nominated by acclamation.

Brennan Victorious.

Champaign county presented the name of John P. Brennan for state treasurer. F. D. Guthrie of Marion presented the name of Harry L. Goodbread of Wyandot county. James Devine of Cuyahoga, formerly of Ross, was also named. The first ballot resulted: Goodbread, 319½; Devine, 198; Brennan, 425½.

Outrages Increase.
What is regarded as one of the most sinister phases of the situation in eastern and southern Cuba, as it has developed in the last few days, is the increase in the number of brutal attacks on white women. Four separate instances of such outrages were reported to the state department. All occurred in Oriente province, which from the first has been the principal field of operations of the negroes.

In one case the home of a former high official of the provincial government was entered by a band of negroes. The father and his son were bound by the marauders, who then outraged the mother and two daughters of the family in the presence of the two men. The son, succeeding in breaking his bonds, was killed in cold blood. Though no American women have been attacked thus far, fear holds sway in every American family resident in the affected regions.

Toothache May Prove Fatal.

des, manager of the O. R. O. branch of the Pennsylvania railroad, is thought to be dying of erysipelas. He had a tooth pulled several days ago
and an abscess formed.

WEAVING NET ABOUT DARROW IN BRIBE CASE

Prosecution Seeks to Show Morrison
Gave Darrow Bribe Money.

Los Angeles, June 6.—Clarence Darrow's trial on a charge of bribery fairly sizzled with excitement. Before court adjourned check No. 30, dated Aug. 21, 1911, and signed
"Frank Morrison, Secretary, Special Number 5," for the sum of $10,000, was offered in evidence. The state asserts that the money used for bribery was obtained through this check, which Clarence Darrow indorsed.

The remittance sheet of the Anglo and London-Paris bank of San Francisco to the Riggs National bank in Washington, D. C., also was identified. It shows Tveitmo cashed check No. 30, indorsed by Darrow.

Frank Morrison's checkbook showed the total of the McNamara defense fund sent to Darrow was $207, 000 and that checks had been drawn against it amounting to $219,872.26.

Posse Captures Cracksmen.
Chicago Junction, O., June 6.—
Posses resumed the search for the second of two bandits who blew the safe in the postoffice at North Fairfield. The other was captured here after a pursuit led by bloodhounds and a gun battle in which he was wounded in the face by a charge of buckshot.

General Wiley Dies.

General Aquila Wiley, 80, a civil war veteran and attorney, died here. He against the late President William McKinley in 1877.

Renominated For Lieutenant
Governor by Ohio Democrats.

MURDERER ELECTROCUTED.

Boston, June 6.—Enrico Mascoli, alias Frank Marshall, was put to death in the state prison at 12:18 o'clock this morning. He and Mrs.
Lena Cusumano were found guilty of the murder of Frank Cusumano, the latter's husband, at Hull last year.
Mrs. Cusumano's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by the executive council.

Shoots Wife and Self.
Millersburg, O., June 6.—Daniel Small, in a jealous rage, shot his wife at their home near Stillwell and,
thinking he had killed her, turned the weapon on himself and fired a bullet into his head, dying soon after.
The wife was wounded in the arm and back part of the head and her chances for recovery are slight.

Suspicion Now is Cast On Detective Wm. J. Burns

Noted Detective Said to Have Picked
Jurors in Land Case.

Washington, June 6.—A storm is about to break over Detective William J. Burns, former President Roosevelt, Postmaster General Hitchcock, Francis J. Heney and many other well-known men over the case of W. R. Jones, just pardoned after conviction of land frauds in Oregon.
The department of justice has original documents showing that Burns and his men canvassed all prospective jurors and picked out only such as were sure to convict.

It is expected the Roosevelt men will make charges that the alleged jury fixing is brought out at this time for political purposes.

Rex Is Indicted.
Columbus, O., June 6.—L. N. Rex, suspended chief clerk at the penitentiary, will have to fight before a court and jury to keep from becoming a fellow prisoner with those whose money he is alleged to have appropriated to his own use while a free man in the prison office. The grand jury reported an indictment for embezzlement against Mr. Rex.
The money he is alleged to have taken amounts to more than $5,000.

Mayor Baker of Cleveland Threatens to Floor of Baltimore Convention.

Nichols Renamed For Lieutenant
Governor—Constitutional Delegate
Donahey Goes on Ticket as Candidate For Auditor of State.

Toledo, O., June 6.—Mindful of every wish of Governor Harmon and confident that the popularity of Congressman James M. Cox of Dayton can be translated into votes in November, the Democratic state convention fulfilled predictions in adopting the unit rule, modified to the extent that it shall be effective only so long as Governor Harmon is in the race for president, nominated Mr.
Cox for governor by acclamation and adopted a platform which contains radical planks.

After the hopeless fight of the Cuyahoga men and the Lentz-Garber-Durbin pioneer progressive element had been ended, it was a harmony convention. Harmon managers made good their claims to nearly 600 votes for the unit rule. The actual count was 597 for it to 357 against.

The result gives Governor Harmon
a ringing endorsement at home and Ohio's 48 votes solid at Baltimore so long as he is in the race. Mayor Newton D. Baker of Cleveland will renew his fight in the national convention.
A giant ovation greeted Congressman Cox when he accepted the nomination and promised a fight from now on until November to keep Ohio in the Democratic column. Mr. Cox declared himself a radical and indorsed without qualification the work of the constitutional convention.

The balance of the state ticket was completed as follows:

Representative Kennedy of Allen nominated Daniel H. Sullivan of Lima for lieutenant governor. John Weld
Peck named Hugh L. Nichols. Mr.
Sullivan withdrew his name and Mr.
Nichols was named by acclamation.
Judge Scott Stahle of Ottawa county, amid restlessness and confusion which prevented his speech being heard, named Charles H. Graves for secretary of state, and he was nominated by acclamation.

Brennan Victorious.
Champaign county presented the name of John P. Brennan for state treasurer. F. D. Guthrie of Marion presented the name of Harry L. Good-bread of Wyandot county. James Devine of Cuyahoga, formerly of Ross, was also named. The first ballot resulted: Goodbread, 319½; Devine, 198; Brennan, 425½.

HORSE STOLEN FROM PASTURE

Same Parties Believed to Have Stolen Horse From Isaac Parker to Remove Stolen Goods. Suspicious Character Headed Toward This City Suspected.

Burglars visited the general store of Acton Brothers in Milledgeville about two o'clock this morning and carried off some $50 worth of goods of various kinds, and it is believed the same parties stole a driving horse from the pasture of Isaac Parker in order to haul away the goods stolen from the store.

Entrance was effected by cutting out a pane of glass from one of the front windows, and crawling through the window into the store, where the burglar ransacked the place, finding that no money had been left in the cash drawer. However money was not apparently all the fellow or fellows were after, and two pairs of shoes, two hats, a half cheese, a quantity of tobacco and cigars and other articles totaling nearly $50, formed the loot that the men carried away with them.

Parties living near the store heard a noise about 2 o'clock in the morning and believe that the men were at work then. Indications are that the same parties who robbed the Jenks store at Edgefield and committed a robbery in Octa, probably entered the store in Milledgeville.

No trace of the men could be found, and the only suspicious character reported was a tramp who stopped at a farm house along the railroad about one mile east of Milledgeville, and who carried a bundle under his arm and was headed toward

Oiled Streets For Bloomingburg And Good Hope

Bloomingburg and Good Hope are getting on the band wagon and are going to have oiled streets. These Fayette county towns are nothing if not up to date and yesterday the municipal authorities of both villages contracted with Mr. Fred M. Mark to have the main streets oiled. The summer will be made infinitely more pleasant for the residents, as both Bloomingburg and Good Hope are on the line of popular motoring routes and the dust and discomfort without the oiling could hardly be estimated. It goes without saying that the motorists will appreciate the improved roads.

Merchants to the Rescue Will Assist the Bankers

Tired of waiting on the remaining Springfield Banking Institutions to subscribe the remaining $35,000 of the $100,000 in bonds for extending the Springfield & Washington Electric railroad to this city, the committee in charge of the proposition have appealed to Springfield merchants, and reports from Springfield indicate that by the end of this week the entire amount will be subscribed, and the extension virtually guaranteed.

Today's Springfield Sun has the following to say regarding the move: "Confident that the projected loan, to be used for the purpose of extending the Springfield & Washington C. H. traction line from South Charleston to Washington C. H. is one which will necessitate no undue risk, merchants of this city, it is understood, have decided to band together and raise a guarantee fund, covering the remainder of the loan so that work on the extension may be started as soon as possible.

"The object is to secure the guarantee of the balance of the $100,000 which the committee has been unable to raise. Only $65,000 has been subscribed, the banks agreeing to take a share of the loan being the First National, the American Trust and Savings Company, the Lagonda National and the Springfield National.

"The committee, with the assistance of the merchants, hopes to raise the remaining $35,000 by the end of the week."

Mr. Durlinger was at his home and had borrowed the weapon from Mr. David Whiteside to use in killing crows. He had just finished cleaning the weapon and loaded it when the hammer struck against a chair, forcing the hammer back and letting it drop on the plunger.

The load from the weapon passed through the roof of the verandah, but Mr. Durlinger fortunately escaped injury.

BUILT UPON QUICKSAND.

It Makes a Firm Foundation For Many New York Skyscrapers.

Quicksand, to the popular mind a lurking monster that swallows up the unwary, while often treacherous, has been safely built upon, and several of the second class skyscrapers in New York rest directly upon it. It is necessary at the outset to correct the popular idea about quicksand. The engineer's definition of quicksand is any loose, friable material saturated with water. There are different kinds of quicksand, just as there are different kinds of wood, varying from nearly as treacherous as the popular idea of it to a material that may be safely built upon.

The ground in the lower end of Manhattan Island is a quicksand extending from the surface to a maximum depth of eighty feet below Broadway. It will bear three tons per square foot, and the foundations of many tall buildings rest upon it. Filled in ground is one of the poorest materials on which to build, as for years after it has been deposited it will continue to settle, and obviously any structure it carries must settle with it.

Ordinary ground will bear safely from two to four tons per square foot, dry clay from four to six tons per square foot, good gravel from six to ten tons and bedrock from 50 to 200 tons per square foot. Sand if confined will stand very large pressures, and similarly water, the most unsuitable of all, if it could be restrained, would be capable of resisting an enormous pressure. Certainly no force man has produced is sufficient to injure its structure.—Strand Magazine.

"Murdered" Man Was Only Dead Drunk

A great deal of excitement was created on the streets shortly after the noon hour today by the report that Bay Hawes, a well known character about the city, had been murdered by two men in an automobile and his body flung to the roadside on the Creek road near the D. T. & I. crossing.

Chief McCoy secured the services of Edward Hutson's automobile and hurried to the scene, finding Bay Hawes along the roadside, apparently dead, but a brief examination showed that he was only dead drunk.

The man was loaded into the automobile and brought to the city lock-up and thrown in to sleep off his jag. The two men in the automobile whom Hawes claimed kicked him out, have not been located.

METHOD IN BUSINESS.

One Busy Executive's Plan For Keeping His Papers In Order.

Often executives use portfolios on their desks for keeping important matters before them, but if they have many matters the portfolio becomes bulky, papers are lost and the desk is littered. With a flat top desk a portfolio is an impossibility.

Recently a business man who was a firm believer in the portfolio idea worked out a variation of it which handled his matters very satisfactorily. He bought a four drawer flat top cabinet, which sat beside his desk. He could pull all of the drawers out part way and drop papers in them as he worked, thus keeping them off his desk and putting them where they would be taken care of.

The top drawer was labeled "Today," the next one "Tomorrow," the third one "Next Week" and the last one "Next Month." When he reached a paper he wanted to take up next day he dropped it in the second drawer and followed the same idea with the other drawers with reference to time. Each morning his stenographer emptied the

BISMARCK'S REVOLT.

The Quarrel and Retort That Parted Him From the Kaiser.

The emperor's quarrel with Bismarck is a matter of history, and it started owing to the chancellor having a private interview with a certain political personage unknown to his majesty. The Kaiser, hearing of this, wrote to Bismarck telling him that he expected to be informed of all such interviews before they took place. The prince's reply to the letter was a verbal one and was spoken to the emperor's private secretary. "Tell his majesty," it ran, "that I cannot allow any one to decide who is to cross my own threshold."

When the message was delivered to the Kaiser he drove around to the chancellor's place and asked him what the discussion in question was about. In excited tones the prince declared that he could not subject his intercourse with political personages to any restraint, nor would he allow any one to control the passage to his private apartments.

"Not even when I as your sovereign command you to do so?" shouted the emperor, enraged.

"The commands of my sovereign," coldly replied the chancellor, "end at the drawing room of my wife."

At the same time he offered to retire from office. This was on Saturday, and on the following Monday the emperor politely asked Bismarck to send in his resignation. On March 18, 1890, the Tuesday after the quarrel, the abdication was written, and Germany lost her pilot.—National Magazine.

CLARK COUNTY IN THE CIVIL WAR

Springfield, where the Ohio G. A. R. holds its annual encampment June 17-21, is the county seat of Clark county, which sent a heavy quota of her sons to the front during the Civil war.

It was on April 12, 1861, that the firing on Fort Sumter, in Charleston harbor, occurred, inaugurating the "War for the Union" of 1861-65. Before the bombardment had ceased on that eventful day a telegram had been sent to Governor Dennison at Columbus tendering the services of the Springfield Zouaves, Captain E. C. Mason, for active duty as might be required; the first organized military body in Ohio to do this. On the morning of Wednesday, April 17, 1861, four days after the firing on Fort Sumter, the company left Springfield for Camp Chase, Columbus, and became company F, Second regiment, Ohio volunteer infantry. The zouaves were on the firing line at the first Bull Run battle and one of the members, Chas. McCook, a mere boy, was shot down on his refusal "to surrender to a rebel." He was one of the family of "fighting McCooks."

Company D, Third Ohio volunteer infantry, Captain Vananda, went to camp at the same time, and in the

The county was also represented in the naval service, principally on gunboats playing the larger rivers.

Other companies from the county went into different regiments and when the three months' term of enlistment was over re-enlisted "for three years, or during the war."

Clark county had companies in the Second, Third and Sixteenth Ohio (first three months); Forty-fourth,

Filled in ground is one of the poorest materials on which to build, as for years after it has been deposited it will continue to settle, and obviously any structure it carries must settle with it.

Ordinary ground will bear safely from two to four tons per square foot, dry clay from four to six tons per square foot, good gravel from six to ten tons and bedrock from 50 to 200 tons per square foot. Sand if confined will stand very large pressures, and similarly water, the most unsuitable of all, if it could be restrained, would be capable of resisting an enormous pressure. "Murdered" Man Was Only Dead Drunk

A great deal of excitement was created on the streets shortly after the noon hour today by the report that Bay Hawes, a well known character about the city, had been murdered by two men in an automobile and his body flung to the roadside on the Creek road near the D. T. & I. crossing.

Chief McCoy secured the services of Edward Hutson's automobile and hurried to the scene, finding Bay Hawes along the roadside, apparently dead, but a brief examination showed that he was only dead drunk.

The man was loaded into the automobile and brought to the city lock-up and thrown in to sleep off his jag.

The two men in the automobile whom Hawes claimed kicked him out, have not been located.

METHOD IN BUSINESS.

One Busy Executive's Plan For Keeping His Papers in Order.

Often executives use portfolios on their desks for keeping important matters before them, but if they have many matters the portfolio becomes bulky, papers are lost and the desk is littered. With a flat top desk a portfolio is an impossibility.

Recently a business man who was a firm believer in the portfolio idea worked out a variation of it which handled his matters very satisfactorily. He bought a four drawer flat file cabinet, which sat beside his desk. He could pull all of the drawers out part way and drop papers in them as he worked, thus keeping them off his desk and putting them where they would be taken care of.

The top drawer was labeled "Today," the next one "Tomorrow," the third one "Next Week" and the last one "Next Month." When he reached a paper he wanted to take up next day he dropped it in the second drawer and followed the same idea with the other drawers with reference to time. Each morning his stenographer emptied the

BISMARCK'S REVOLT.

The Quarrel and Retort That Parted Him From the Kaiser.

The emperor's quarrel with Bismarck is a matter of history, and it started owing to the chancellor having a private interview with a certain political personage unknown to his majesty. The Kaiser, hearing of this, wrote to Bismarck telling him that he expected to be informed of all such interviews before they took place. The prince's reply to the letter was a verbal one and was spoken to the emperor's private secretary. "Tell his majesty," it ran, "that I cannot allow any one to decide who is to cross my own threshold."

When the message was delivered to the Kaiser he drove around to the chancellor's place and asked him what the discussion in question was about. In excited tones the prince declared that he could not subject his intercourse with political personages to any restraint, nor would he allow any one to control the passage to his private apartments.

"Not even when I as your sovereign command you to do so?" shouted the emperor, enraged.

"The commands of my sovereign," coldly replied the chancellor, "end at the drawing room of my wife."

At the same time he offered to retire from office. This was on Saturday, and on the following Monday the emperor politely asked Bismarck to send in his resignation. On March 18, 1890, the Tuesday after the quarrel, the abdication was written, and Germany lost her pilot.—National Magazine.

CLARK COUNTY IN THE CIVIL WAR

Springfield, where the Ohio G. A. R. holds its annual encampment June 17-21, is the county seat of Clark county, which sent a heavy quota of her sons to the front during the Civil war.

It was on April 12, 1861, that the firing on Fort Sumter, in Charleston harbor, occurred, inaugurating the "War for the Union" of 1861-65. Before the bombardment had ceased on that eventful day a telegram had been sent to Governor Dennison at Columbus tendering the services of the Springfield Zouaves, Captain E. C. Mason, for active duty as might be required: the first organized military body in Ohio to do this. On the morning of Wednesday, April 17, 1861, four days after the firing on Fort Sumter, the company left Springfield for Camp Chase, Columbus, and became company F, Second regiment, Ohio volunteer infantry. The zouaves were on the firing line at the first Bull Run battle and one of the members, Chas. McCook, a mere boy, was shot down on his refusal "to surrender to a rebel." He was one of the family of "fighting McCooks."

Company D, Third Ohio volunteer infantry, Captain Vananda, went to camp at the same time, and in the

Other companies from the county went into different regiments and when the three months' term of enlistment was over re-enlisted "for three years, or during the war." Clark county had companies in the Second, Third and Sixteenth Ohio (first three months); Forty-fourth, Thirty-first, Forty-fifth, Seventy-first, Ninety-fourth, One Hundred and Tenth, One Hundred and Twentieth, and several of the shorter term regiments of infantry; Tenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth batteries, and First Heavy artillery; Second, Kentucky infantry; Fifth, Eighth, Eleventh and Twelfth cavalry. The county was also represented in the naval service, principally on gunboats plying the larger rivers.

BOLD BURGLARS ROB MILLEDGEVILLE STORE

Remove Window Glass of Acton Brothers' Store and Carry Off $50 Worth of Goods.

HORSE STOLEN FROM PASTURE

Same Parties Believed to Have Stolen Horse From Isaac Parker to Remove Stolen Goods. Suspicious Character Headed Toward This City Suspected.

Burglars visited the general store of Acton Brothers in Milledgeville about two o'clock this morning and carried off some $50 worth of goods of various kinds, and it is believed the same parties stole a driving horse from the pasture of Isaac Parker in order to haul away the goods stolen from the store.

Entrance was effected by cutting out a pane of glass from one of the front windows, and crawling through the window into the store, where the burglar ransacked the place, finding that no money had been left in the cash drawer. However money was not apparently all the fellow or fellows were after, and two pairs of shoes, two hats, a half cheese, a quantity of tobacco and cigars and other articles totaling nearly $50, formed the loot that the men carried away with them.

Parties living near the store heard a noise about 2 o'clock in the morning and believe that the men were at work then. Indications are that the same parties who robbed the Jenks store at Edgefield and committed a robbery in Octa, probably entered the store in Milledgeville.

No trace of the men could be found, and the only suspicious character reported was a tramp who stopped at a farm house along the railroad about one mile east of Milledgeville, and who carried a bundle under his arm and was headed toward

Bloomingburg and Good Hope are getting on the band wagon and are going to have oiled streets. These Fayette county towns are nothing if not up to date and yesterday the municipal authorities of both villages contracted with Mr. Fred M. Mark to have the main streets oiled. The summer will be made infinitely more pleasant for the residents, as both Bloomingburg and Good Hope are on the line of popular motoring routes and the dust and discomfort without the oiling could hardly be estimated. It goes without saying that the motorists will appreciate the improved roads.

Merchants to the Rescue Will Assist the Bankers

Tired of waiting on the remaining Springfield Banking Institutions to subscribe the remaining $35,000 of the $100,000 in bonds for extending the Springfield & Washington Electric railroad to this city, the committee in charge of the proposition have appealed to Springfield merchants, and reports from Springfield indicate that by the end of this week the entire amount will be subscribed, and the extension virtually guaranteed.

Today's Springfield Sun has the following to say regarding the move: "Confident that the projected loan, to be used for the purpose of extending the Springfield & Washington C. H. traction line from South Charleston to Washington C. H. is one which will necessitate no undue risk, merchants of this city, it is understood, have decided to band together and raise a guarantee fund, covering the remainder of the loan so that work on the extension may be started as soon as possible.

"The object is to secure the guarantee of the balance of the $100,000 which the committee has been unable to raise. Only $65,000 has been subscribed, the banks agreeing to take a share of the loan being the First National, the American Trust and Savings Company, the Lagonda National and the Springfield National.

"The committee, with the assistance of the merchants, hopes to raise the remaining $35,000 by the end of the week."

BUILT UPON QUICKSAND.

It Makes a Firm Foundation For Many New York Skyscrapers.

Quicksand, to the popular mind a lurking monster that swallows up the unwary, while often treacherous, has been safely built upon, and several of the second class skyscrapers in New York rest directly upon it. It is necessary at the outset to correct the popular idea about quicksand. The engineer's definition of quicksand is any loose, friable material saturated with water. There are different kinds of quicksand, just as there are different kinds of wood, varying from nearly as treacherous as the popular idea of it to a material that may be safely built upon.

The ground in the lower end of Manhattan Island is a quicksand extending from the surface to a maximum depth of eighty feet below Broadway. It will bear three tons per square foot, and the foundations of many tall buildings rest upon it. Filled in ground is one of the poorest materials on which to build, as for years after it has been deposited it will continue to settle, and obviously any structure it carries must settle with it.

GREEN TOWNSHIP SCHOOL TROUBLES

Suit Brought by Four Taxpayers to Enjoin Board of Education From Carrying Out Plans.

PECULIAR TANGLE IS CHARGED

Contractor Williams and Auditor Henkle Made Parties to the Action---Plaintiffs Allege That Member of Board Lives in Perry Township and Not Legal Member---Restraining Orders Issued.

Protest has been raised over the building of a new school building in Green township, as contemplated by the Board of Education, a suit having been filed in Common Pleas court Thursday morning to prevent the movement.

The suit was filed by B. H. Coffey, Wilson Morris, Lewis Moore and Victor Harper against the Board of Education of Green township, Ande E. Henkle, as auditor, Gilbert Syferd and Joseph S. Williams of this city, the latter having contracted for erecting the building at a cost of $7,123.

The plaintiffs claim that they are property owners and taxpayers in Green township and that the township is divided into seven sub-school districts, each district with a fully equipped building; that sub-district No. 6 (at Buena Vista) is equipped with a modern, substantial brick building, containing twice enough room to accommodate the pupils at present, and that there is no cause for additional building.

They further claim that on Feb. 13, 1912, at a meeting of the Board of Education that a resolution was passed to have J. H. Hicks prepare sketches of the building proposed, and that on February 27 these sketches were submitted, two voting for and two against the adoption of the sketches. That Gilbert Syferd, who is alleged to live in Perry township and not a qualified elector of Green, also voted in favor of the resolution and it was declared adopted.

At the same meeting another resolution is said to have been adopted contracting with Hicks for plans and specifications for a building to cost $5500. The vote stood two yeas and two nays with Syferd voting nay, and the resolution was said to have carried. A vote to instruct the clerk to advertise for bids stood the same way, and the clerk advertised for the bids to be opened on May 25th, when Joseph Williams' bid of $9,125 was the lowest, and it is averred that the plans were changed and a contract entered into for enlarging the school house in sub-district No. 6, at a cost of $7,123.

The plaintiffs further claim that there was not money enough in the treasury to erect such a building, and that another vote was taken and the clerk ordered to certify to the county auditor a tax levy of $1200 for building purposes.

The four men asked that Auditor Henkle be enjoined from certifying the tax levy; that Williams be enjoined from commencing the structure; that Syferd be enjoined from serving on the school board, and that the action of the board be set aside and upon final hearing the restraining order be made perpetual.

Temporary restraining orders were granted by Judge Carpenter. Attorneys Logan and Post & Reid represent the plaintiffs.

Mr. Syferd, who was in town Thursday and who was asked about his residence, said that he lived in Perry township, but the school district included his place of residence. Much interest attaches to the case.

LUCK IN BASEBALL

Freak Plays by Which Games Have Been Decided.

PUT THE BALL IN HIS POCKET.

Cliff Carroll's Funny Stunt That Let in the Winning Run and Enraged Chris von der Ahe—A Hit That Put Two Balls in Play at the Same Time.

In the American Magazine Hugh S. Fullerton writes of freak plays that have won great baseball games. Following is one of the most remarkable stories:

"Among the abnormal incidents that figured in the earlier history of the national game, perhaps none is as well known to old timers as the one which happened to Cliff Carroll on the St. Louis grounds when he was a member of the famous 'Browns.' Perhaps you have wondered why baseball players have plain shirt fronts and why so few players have breast pockets. Cliff Carroll is the reason. He was running forward to take a base hit on the first bound.

"The ball bounced crooked and hit him on the chest. He grabbed at the ball hastily, and as he clutched it he shoved it down into the handkerchief pocket on his shirt front. The runner saw Carroll tugging and straining to tear the ball out of the pocket, and instead of stopping at first he sprinted on to second, while Carroll, still trying to dislodge the ball, ran to second. The batter passed the fielder and turned for third with Carroll in pursuit. At third Carroll stopped and tried in vain to release the ball, and the runner kept on across the plate and scored the winning run.

"Chris von der Ahe, who at that time was at the head of the euphonio trio, Von der Ahe, Muckenfuss and Diddlebock, which operated the club, was furious and ordered all pockets removed from baseball shirts. Other teams followed, and the pockets never have been restored except by a few players who are willing to risk the repetition of the accident."

A curious story is this one of a game where two balls were in play at the same time:

"Perhaps the strangest freak play was one made by Frank McNichols on the Logan Square grounds in Chicago. The Logan Square team, then owned by Jimmy Callahan, had persuaded McNichols, a ball player of major league caliber, to play first base against the Gunthers, another strong team, and the score was tied in the ninth inning. The Gunthers had runners on second and third with two out, and a base hit meant probable defeat for the Logans and loss of the city championship.

"Matty Fitzgerald, a well known umpire, was officiating alone from behind the pitchers' slab. His blouse was filled with extra balls, and in stooping to sight along the plate as the pitcher wound up he allowed one of the spare balls to fall to the ground behind him. The batter hit a hard line drive that seemed aimed at the pitcher's ankles.

"Fitzgerald leaped aside to avoid being hit, the batted ball struck the ball on the ground, and the two balls kissed off at right angles. One went straight toward the shortstop, the other toward the second baseman. Each player thought the ball rolling toward him was the one in play, and each dashed forward, made clever running scoops at the same instant and threw to first base at the same time.

"The shortstop threw high and to the left of McNichols; the second baseman threw low and to his right. McNichols, with his left hand stretched high, caught one ball in his mitt, and with the other hand he caught the low throw, and Fitzgerald, after scratching his head an instant, called the batter out and refused to allow either of the runs that crossed the plate on the play to be recorded."

The following might be called the story of the base hit that never came down:

"Of all the good luck freaks that I ever heard recounted the best was that which happened to Frank Isbell when he was playing with St. Paul in the old Western league. In those days baseball on Sunday was not permitted within the corporate limits of St. Paul, and a Sunday park had been erected outside the city's jurisdiction.

"The ground was extremely small and was inclosed by a high fence. So small was the inclosure that batters hitting the ball hard against the fences were compelled to sprint to first, because if the ball happened to rebound directly to the fielder he could throw a slow runner out. As it required about four hits or their equivalent in errors to yield a run, small scores were the rule.

"In the ninth inning of this game Milwaukee had two runs the advantage, and there were runners on first and second, with Isbell at bat. St. Paul's only logical hope was for a home run over one of the high fences. Isbell hit a hard line smash to right field against the fence. The runner on first was a slow man, and the fielder squatted, expecting the ball to rebound to him and to whirl and force the slow man at second base, ending the game.

"But the ball didn't rebound. It impaled itself on a wire nail about ten feet up the fence, and while the Milwaukee outfielders were hunting a ladder Isbell circled the bases and won the game."

GREEN TOWNSHIP SCHOOL TROUBLES

Suit Brought by Four Taxpayers to Enjoin Board of Education From Carrying Out Plans.

PECULIAR TANGLE IS CHARGED

Contractor Williams and Auditor Henkle Made Parties to the Action---Plaintiffs Allege That Member of Board Lives in Perry Township and Not Legal Member---Restraining Orders Issued.

Protest has been raised over the building of a new school building in Green township, as contemplated by the Board of Education, a suit having been filed in Common Pleas court Thursday morning to prevent the movement.

The suit was filed by B. H. Coffey, Wilson Morris, Lewis Moore and Victor Harper against the Board of Education of Green township, Ande E. Henkle, as auditor, Gilbert Syferd and Joseph S. Williams of this city, the latter having contracted for erecting the building at a cost of $7,123.

The plaintiffs claim that they are property owners and taxpayers in Green township and that the township is divided into seven sub-school districts, each district with a fully equipped building; that sub-district No. 6 (at Buena Vista) is equipped with a modern, substantial brick building, containing twice enough room to accommodate the pupils at present, and that there is no cause for additional building.

They further claim that on Feb. 13, 1912, at a meeting of the Board of Education that a resolution was passed to have J. H. Hicks prepare sketches of the building proposed, and that on February 27 these sketches were submitted, two voting for and two against the adoption of the sketches. That Gilbert Syferd, who is alleged to live in Perry township and not a qualified elector of Green, also voted in favor of the resolution and it was declared adopted.

At the same meeting another resolution is said to have been adopted contracting with Hicks for plans and specifications for a building to cost $5500. Suit Brought by Four Taxpayers to Enjoin Board of Education From Carrying Out Plans.

PECULIAR TANGLE IS CHARGED

Contractor Williams and Auditor Henkle Made Parties to the Action--Plaintiffs Allege That Member of Board Lives in Perry Township and Not Legal Member--Restraining Orders Issued.

Protest has been raised over the building of a new school building in Green township, as contemplated by the Board of Education, a suit having been filed in Common Pleas court Thursday morning to prevent the movement.

The suit was filed by B. H. Coffey, Wilson Morris, Lewis Moore and Victor Harper against the Board of Education of Green township, Ande E. Henkle, as auditor, Gilbert Syferd and Joseph S. Williams of this city, the latter having contracted for erecting the building at a cost of $7,123.

The plaintiffs claim that they are property owners and taxpayers in Green township and that the township is divided into seven sub-school districts, each district with a fully equipped building; that sub-district No. 6 (at Buena Vista) is equipped with a modern, substantial brick building, containing twice enough room to accommodate the pupils at present, and that there is no cause for additional building.

They further claim that on Feb. 13, 1912, at a meeting of the Board of Education that a resolution was passed to have J. H. Hicks prepare sketches of the building proposed, and that on February 27 these sketches were submitted, two voting for and two against the adoption of the sketches. That Gilbert Syferd, who is alleged to live in Perry township and not a qualified elector of Green, also voted in favor of the resolution and it was declared adopted.

At the same meeting another resolution is said to have been adopted contracting with Hlcks for plans and specifications for a building to cost $5500. The vote stood two yeas and two nays with Syferd voting nay, and the resolution was said to have carried. A vote to instruct the clerk to advertise for bids stood the same way, and the clerk advertised for the bids to be opened on May 25th, when Joseph Williams' bid of $9,125 was the lowest, and it is averred that the plans were changed and a contract entered into for enlarging the school house in sub-district No. 6, at a cost of $7,123.

The plaintiffs further claim that there was not money enough in the treasury to erect such a building, and that another vote was taken and the clerk ordered to certify to the county auditor a tax levy of $1200 for building purposes.

The four men asked that Auditor Henkle be enjoined from certifying the tax levy; that Williams be enjoined from commencing the structure; that Syferd be enjoined from serving on the school board, and that the action of the board be set aside and upon final hearing the restraining order be made perpetual.

Temporary restraining orders were granted by Judge Carpenter. Attorneys Logan and Post & Reid represent the plaintiffs.

Mr. Syferd, who was in town Thursday and who was asked about his residence, said that he lived in Perry township, but the school district included his place of residence. Much interest attaches to the case.

LUCK IN BASEBALL

Freak Plays by Which Games Have Been Decided.

PUT THE BALL IN HIS POCKET.

Cliff Carroll's Funny Stunt That Let in the Winning Run and Enraged Chris von der Ahe--A Hit That Put Two Balls in Play at the Same Time.

In the American Magazine Hugh S. Fullerton writes of freak plays that have won great baseball games. Following is one of the most remarkable stories:

"Among the abnormal incidents that figured in the earlier history of the national game, perhaps none is as well known to old timers as the one which happened to Cliff Carroll on the St. Louis grounds when he was a member of the famous 'Browns.' Perhaps you have wondered why baseball players have plain shirt fronts and why so few players have breast pockets. Cliff Carroll is the reason. He was running forward to take a base hit on the first bound.

"The ball bounced crooked and hit him on the chest. He grabbed at the ball hastily, and as he clutched it he shoved it down into the handkerchief pocket on his shirt front. The runner saw Carroll tugging and straining to tear the ball out of the pocket, and instead of stopping at first he sprinted on to second, while Carroll, still trying to dislodge the ball, ran to second. The batter passed the fielder and turned for third with Carroll in pursuit. At third Carroll stopped and tried in vain to release the ball, and the runner kept on across the plate and scored the winning run.

"Chris von der Ahe, who at that time was at the head of the euphonio trio, Von der Ahe, Muckenfuss and Diddlebock, which operated the club, was furious and ordered all pockets removed from baseball shirts. Other teams followed, and the pockets never have been restored except by a few players who are willing to risk the repetition of the accident."

A curious story is this one of a game where two balls were in play at the same time:

"Perhaps the strangest freak play was one made by Frank McNichols on the Logan Square grounds in Chicago. The Logan Square team, then owned by Jimmy Callahan, had persuaded McNichols, a ball player of major league caliber, to play first base against the Gunthers, another strong team, and the score was tied in the ninth inning. The Gunthers had runners on second and third with two out, and a base hit meant probable defeat for the Logans and loss of the city championship.

"Matty Fitzgerald, a well known umpire, was officiating alone from behind the pitchers' slab. His blouse was filled with extra balls, and in stooping to sight along the plate as the pitcher wound up he allowed one of the spare balls to fall to the ground behind him. The batter hit a hard line drive that seemed aimed at the pitcher's ankles. Fitzgerald leaped aside to avoid being hit, the batted ball struck the ball on the ground, and the two balls kissed off at right angles. One went straight toward the shortstop, the other toward the second baseman. Each player thought the ball rolling toward him was the one to play, and each dashed forward, made clever running scoops at the same instant and threw to first base at the same time.

dashed forward, made clever running scoops at the same instant and threw to first base at the same time.

"The shortstop threw high and to the left of McNichols; the second baseman threw low and to his right, McNichols, with his left hand stretched high, caught one ball in his mitt, and with the other hand he caught the low throw, and Fitzgerald, after scratching his head an instant, called the batter out and refused to allow either of the runs that crossed the plate on the play to be recorded."

The following might be called the story of the base hit that never came down:

"Of all the good luck freaks that I ever heard recounted the best was that which happened to Frank Isbell when he was playing with St. Paul in the old Western league. In those days baseball on Sunday was not permitted within the corporate limits of St. Paul, and a Sunday park had been erected outside the city's jurisdiction.

"The ground was extremely small and was inclosed by a high fence. So small was the inclosure that batters hitting the ball hard against the fences were compelled to sprint to first, because if the ball happened to rebound directly to the fielder he could throw a slow runner out. As it required about four hits or their equivalent in errors to yield a run, small scores were the rule.

"In the ninth inning of this game Milwaukee had two runs the advantage, and there were runners on first and second, with Isbell at bat. St. Paul's only logical hope was for a home run over one of the high fences. Isbell hit a hard line smash to right field against the fence. The runner on first was a slow man, and the fielder squatted, expecting the ball to rebound to him and to whirl and force the slow man at second base, ending the game.

"But the ball didn't rebound. It impaled itself on a wire nail about ten feet up the fence, and while the Milwaukee outfielders were hunting a ladder Isbell circled the bases and won the game."

Fame only comes when deserved, and then it is as inevitable as destiny, for it is destiny--Longfellow.

COACHING still has a strong hold upon "smart" society in England as well as in the United States. This spring Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, second son of William K. Vanderbilt, has resumed his regular trips between London and Brighton, a distance of sixty-four miles over splendid English roads. Three relays of horses are used. The coach makes the trip "down" (all places out of London are "down") one day and "up" the next, so that there are three round trips a week, the coach not running on Sunday. The start is made from Trafalgar square, which lies between the fashionable shopping and residential district of the west and the business and financial section to the east. The tours are popular, and the coach is usually well filled.

PROGRESSING?

We have heard a great deal of talk from "the stump" during the past year about progressive principles. Candidates have repeatedly announced that they were progressives and were firmly committed to progressive ideas. Political parties dared not do otherwise than announce that progressive ideas and progressive action was the dominating force of the party organization and the sole aim and purpose of the party.

With all this commotion about being progressives, the action of the two leading political parties in State convention assembled, does not prove conclusively by any means that the politicians have "progressed" nearly so far as the people and that the talk about progressive principles was more for effect than use so far as the politicians are concerned.

One of the most progressive of progressive principles advocated and the one most relied upon is the "Let the people rule" slogan. Both parties claim to favor that as a cornerstone principle.

In the Democratic State convention at Toledo, a resolution was adopted which, if permitted to stand by the National convention at Baltimore, deprives the people of Ohio of nineteen votes in that convention.

Notwithstanding the fact that many of the voters of Ohio elected nineteen delegates in a direct primary election, who had pledged themselves to vote against Judson Harmon, the State convention composed of delegates selected in many instances long after the primary election, deprives the voters of the benefit of those nineteen votes at Baltimore and counts them up for Judson Harmon by the adoption of the "Unit Rule."

Not much "let the people rule" in that action of the Democratic convention.

But how about the brethren on the other side at the Columbus convention. Notwithstanding the fact that the Republican voters of Ohio in the May primaries declared that Mr. Roosevelt should have thirty-two of the district delegates and notwithstanding the fact that many thousand more votes were cast for the Roosevelt delegates than were cast for the Taft delegates, the Republican State convention gives the "Big Six" delegates at-large from the state to Mr. Taft.

The question is not whether we are, any of us, particularly excited or enthused over the candidacy of Harmon or Wilson or Clark or Roosevelt or Taft, or whether we oppose any one of them, with vehemence, it is the "Let the people rule" theory which has been so constantly talked and advocated. The people may rule at election time, but the politicians of neither one of the political parties paid any attention to the expressed wish of the people in the primaries.

Office-holders were on hand in both gatherings, using their influence with delegates to vote in such a way as to enable them to discharge a political obligation which they were owing to some political leader.

The politician regards his obligations as sacredly binding and is as jealous of his reputation on that point of honor as it is possible for any one to be on any subject, but the strange feature of it all is that the only obligations recognized or even considered are those due and owing to some politicians.

The obligation due to the people never enters into the calculation at all and it is the existence of that deplorable condition which threatens political revolution in both political parties.

Politicians talk much of their belief in progressive principles and "Let the people rule" doctrine, and then proceed to go just exactly contrary to the clearly expressed wishes of their constituents.

The people have been moving forward, but the politicians still cling to the old order of business and have not yet realized that a new era has in fact dawned. The day of talk and promises only has passed and it is a question now of delivering the finished produce and obeying the orders of the new boss—the people.

The politicians who first wake up to this fact will be the successes of the future.

One of the maxims that are not true is "Misery loves company." The fact is that it is happiness that loves company, while sorrow seeks solitude. We close the door to weep and draw the blinds; we go to the theater and crowded restaurants to laugh.

Misfortune isolates. Pensiveness is unsociable.

These lines are written on shipboard. We have been six days at sea and all the passengers have become acquainted; for an ocean liner a few days out resembles a country village; everybody knows everybody and everybody's business. Convention rules the decks and gossip guards the cozy corners as thoroughly as in a New England town.

Only one man keeps apart. His wife is in a coffin in the hold. A month ago they went to Italy for a long lark; she died in Naples. This man speaks to no one. He keeps his room. He may be seen of nights looking over the rail into the boiling dark of the sea, alone.

When an animal is wounded he flees the pack and in some cave or under some bush, solitary, he licks the bleeding paw or torn shoulder. So when the human heart breaks its cry is for solitude; it shuns light; fellowship is pain; lonesomeness becomes luxury.

Joy is the centripetal, sorrow the centrifugal force of the world. Joy unites cities; disappointment makes emigration.

Poetry—Today

OLD CATTLE MAN SOLILOQUIZES.

He rode by us this mornin' and he looked jest like a knight,
With his silver traps a-shinin' in the streaks of rosy light;
His pack horse trailed behind him, with a bed upon its back,
And he made a purty picture as he passed our homestead shack;
And we knowed that summer 'd hit us—knowed it past the slightest doubt—
Cause the calves were bein' gathered, and the roundup call was out.

The wagon top is shinin' in some distant lonely draw;
The cook is yellin' "Grab pile!"—you can hear the gang hurrah
As they leave the brandin' fire and gallop for the feed.
While the snow-white foam is drip-pin' from the mouth of every steed;
I'd like to throw in with 'em, but Father Time it seems,
Has put me in the discard—I can only live in dreams.

I can only dream of stretches where the cactus and the sage
Crown the rollin' hills of glory—neither time nor creepin' age
Can dim the youthful pictures that come up before my eyes,
When the first glad hint of June-time puts a new blue in the skies
And a top-hand, young and knightly passes by my cabin door
On his way to join his comrades where the roundup's on once more.

Goes to Pen For Lifetime

The case of William A. Potter, on trial for his life for the murder of George W. K. Martin in Circleville in March, came to an abrupt end Wednesday morning, when the court accepted a plea of murder in the second degree and sentenced the man to the Ohio penitentiary for life.

Doctors who examined the man submitted certificates to the effect that Potter was not sane. The man shot Martin in cold blood at the door of his (Potter) divorced wife's home, Martin having been to call on the woman.

GREW HAIR IN SIX WEEKS.

"Mary, have you read what Baroness Ramsey says about Mrs. Mason's Hair Treatment? In her letter which I saw she declares that it produced a considerable growth of hair in only six weeks."

"Yes, Grace, and lots of our best people here in Washington C. H. used to send to New York for Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream before Blackmer & Tanquary, our local druggists, took the agency for it."

"I am using it myself now, it is so easy to wash one's own hair with it and you know it produces a stimulating and luxurious lather which not only removes the dust, dirt, grit and dandruff from the hair and scalp, but at the same time you are rubbing the tonic properties of this famous herb shampoo into the roots of the hair, which stops it coming out and stimulates the growth—just as water does a plant. It makes the hair so beautifully clean, soft and fluffy that it looks twice as thick as it really is. A 25c. tube is sufficient for three or four shampoos and they offer to return your money if you don't like it."

Old "Sheepskin" Warns the Public

Among the papers of the late Solomon Johnson, is a notice issued by O. W. Shattuck, superintendent of the old Cincinnati & Zanesville Railroad Company (now the Pennsylvania), in which he warns the public that the company will not be responsible for bills incurred by its employees.

The notice was issued from Lancaster, Ohio, on February 1st, 1868, and ends with the information that all employees must "confine their expenditures within their means, and that thriftless habits, neglect of their families, dissipation" would be regarded as cause for discharge.

It is interesting to know that Michael O'Donnel, who makes his home at the Central house in this city, is probably the only man employed by the road at that time who is living in the city, and one of the very few in the state.

Former Deep Inland Sea Rich in Mineral Deposits

Another portion of the great geological map of the United States which the Geological Survey is constructing has just been completed and covers the area known as Bismarck quadrangle, in North Dakota. The area of this quadrangle is approximately 820 square miles.

During the remote period of the earth's history known as Cretaceous time North Dakota, along with the rest of the Great Plains region, was submerged beneath an interior sea. The earliest sediments of this ancient sea became the present rock formation known as the Dakota sandstone, which lies more than 2,000 feet below the surface of the Bismarck quadrangle. Other bodies of sediments were subsequently laid down in this sea, which finally withdrew from the region, the latter formations being deposited along the streams and in marshes and swamps. The vegetation which grew in these marshes resulted in the lignite (coal retaining the texture of wood) deposits which are today found in great beds underlying the area.

Great Trees and Huge Land Reptiles Flourished.

The fossils that have been found in the Bismarck quadrangle show that as many as 400 species of plants lived at this early time, among them being a Sequoia which is related to the giant redwood of California and the remains of which have been preserved in the rocks. During this period of mild climatic conditions when swamp vegetation flourished great land reptiles such as dinosaurs were abundant, especially the massive Triceratops, which must have roamed in large numbers along the shores of lake and swamp.

The principal mineral resources of the Bismarck quadrangle, besides the surface and underground water, are lignite, clay, gravel, and sand. When freshly mined the North Dakota lignite is usually lusterless and massive, but on exposure it rapidly breaks down or "slacks" into small shiny cubical blocks, and this tendency is one of the greatest obstacles to be overcome if the fuel is to be consumed in plants so located as to necessitate long hauls by rail or much handling of the material.

Analyses and producer-gas tests were made at the United States Geological Survey's fuel-testing plant in St. Louis of sample of lignite taken from a mine near Wilton, a short distance north of the Bismarck quadrangle, but as the lignite in this quadrangle is not essentially different the results are of value in showing the general nature and composition of the fuel. These analyses and tests made showed a surprising success with lignite in producer-gas plants.

Vote Will Reach 15,000,000 Mark

The prediction of the government experts that the aggregate vote in 1912 will touch the 15,000,000 mark looks like a safe guess. In round figures the number was 11,381,000 in 1888, 12,044,000 in 1892, 13,607,000 in 1896, 13,965,000; 1900, 13,530,000; in 1904, and 14,500,000 in 1908. A gain of only 500,000 would be needed to bring the aggregate for 1912 up to 15,000,000.

Probably the number will be higher than 15,000,000. Women have been given the ballot in Washington and California since 1908, and the experience in the latter state, at least, since suffrage came has been that it will be exercised by a large proportion of the sex. These two states ought alone to furnish 500,000 more votes than they polled four years ago. If, as seems to be probable, equal suffrage carries in the special election in Ohio in September, in which the new constitution is voted upon, very nearly 1,000,000 votes ought to be added to the 1908 figures from that state.

Allowing one male qualified voter to every five of the population, there would be a poll of 19,000,000 in 1912 from men only. Of course, several million persons who have the privilege of voting have remained away from the polls in all recent years. The excitement in that canvass made the number of these absentees relatively smaller in 1896 than in any other year in half a century. Possibly the public interest in the issues and the candidates will bring the proportion of the voters this year up to the 1896 mark.—St. Louis Globe.

Efficiency of Lignite as a Gas Producer.

The following statement has been made concerning the efficiency of North Dakota lignite in the gas-producer and gas engine:

"The result of the steam test so unsatisfactory that there is nothing by which a direct comparison can be made of the efficiency of fuel used in the gas-producer plant as compared with the efficiency developed in the steam plant. Nevertheless, a comparison of the results obtained on other coals under steam boiler is instructive. The test shows that to produce one electric horse-power hour in the producer gas plant required 2.29 pounds of dry North Dakota lignite, whereas to produce the same result in steam plant required 3.39 pounds of the best West Virginia coal. This means that North Dakota lignite, with the moisture eliminated, will more work when used in a producer gas plant than the best coal of country will do in a steam plant.

A number of tests have been made by the fuel-testing plant of the Bureau of Mines to determine the best method of briquetting North Dakota lignite. It has been found that the lignite can be briquetted, some of it without a binder, and that its efficiency is thereby materially increased. The briquetted product also stands up better and handling much better than the raw material.

Steaming tests have also been made with specially constructed boxes and grates and the results highly satisfactory, as the efficiency of this lignite when properly briquetted is so increased as to compare favorably with that of fuel of higher grades.

Wednesday morning a well-dressed lady walked up the street, followed by a small dog. When it came necessary to cross the street the opposite side, the lady stepped out upon the slippery brick and dog immediately picked up the edge of her skirts and prevented her from touching the dirty pavement, dropping the edge of the skirt on reaching the adjoining sidewalk. The dog then trotted along beside the lady and both eventually appeared in a store.

PROGRESSING?

We have heard a great deal of talk from "the stump" during the past year about progressive principles. Candidates have repeatedly announced that they were progressives and were firmly committed to progressive ideas. Political parties dared not do otherwise than announce that progressive ideas and progressive action was the dominating force of the party organization and the sole aim and purpose of the party.

With all this commotion about being progressives, the action of the two leading political parties in State convention assembled, does not prove conclusively by any means that the politicians have "progressed" nearly so far as the people and that the talk about progressive principles was more for effect than use so far as the politicians are concerned.

One of the most progressive of progressive principles advocated and the one most relied upon is the "Let the people rule" slogan. Both parties claim to favor that as a corner-stone principle.

In the Democratic State convention at Toledo, a resolution was adopted which, if permitted to stand by the National convention at Baltimore, deprives the people of Ohio of nineteen votes in that convention.

Notwithstanding the fact that many of the voters of Ohio elected nineteen delegates in a direct primary election, who had pledged themselves to vote against Judson Harmon, the State convention composed of delegates selected in many instances long after the primary election, deprives the voters of the benefit of those nineteen votes at Baltimore and counts them up for Judson Harmon by the adoption of the "Unit Rule."

Not much "let the people rule" in that action of the Democratic convention.

But how about the brethren on the other side at the Columbus convention.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Republican voters of Ohio in the May primaries declared that Mr. Roosevelt should have thirty-two of the district delegates and notwithstanding the fact that many thousand more votes were cast for the Roosevelt delegates than were cast for the Taft delegates, the Republican State convention gives the "Big Six" delegates-at-large from the state to Mr. Taft.

The question is not whether we are, any of us, particularly excited or enthused over the candidacy of Harmon or Wilson or Clark or Roosevelt or Taft, or whether we oppose any one of them, with vehemence, it is the "Let the people rule" theory which has been so constantly talked and advocated. The people may rule at election time, but the politicians of neither one of the political parties paid any attention to the expressed wish of the people in the primaries.

Office-holders were on hand in both gatherings, using their influence with delegates to vote in such a way as to enable them to discharge a political obligation which they were owing to some political leader.

The politician regards his obligations as sacredly binding and is as jealous of his reputation on that point of honor as it is possible for any one to be on any subject, but the strange feature of it all is that the only obligations recognized or even considered are those due and owing to some politicians.

The obligation due to the people never enters into the calculation at all and it is the existence of that deplorable condition which threatens political revolution in both political parties.

Politicians talk much of their belief in progressive principles and "Let the people rule" doctrine, and then proceed to go just exactly contrary to the clearly expressed wishes of their constituents.

The people have been moving forward, but the politicians still cling to the old order of business and have not yet realized that a new era has in fact dawned. The day of talk and promises only has passed and it is a question now of delivering the finished produce and obeying the orders of the new boss—the people.

The politicians who first wake up to this fact will be the successes of the future.

Real Sorrow Always Seeks Solitude

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the maxims that are not true is "Misery loves company." The fact is that it is happiness that loves company, while sorrow seeks solitude. We close the door to weep and draw the blinds; we go to the theater and crowded restaurants to laugh.

Misfortune isolates. Pensiveness is unsocial.

These lines are written on shipboard. We have been six days at sea and all the passengers have become acquainted; for an ocean liner a few days out resembles a country village; everybody knows everybody and everybody's business. Convention rules the decks and gossip guards the cozy corners as thoroughly as in a New England town.

Only one man keeps apart. His wife is in a coffin in the hold. A month ago they went to Italy for a long lark; she died in Naples. This man speaks to no one. He keeps his room. He may be seen of nights looking over the rail into the boiling dark of the sea, alone.

When an animal is wounded he flees the pack and in some cave or under some bush, solitary, he licks the bleeding paw or torn shoulder. So when the human heart breaks its cry is for solitude; it shuns light; fellowship is pain; lonesomeness becomes luxury.

Joy is the centripetal, sorrow the centrifugal force of the world. Joy makes cities; disappointment makes emigration.

Poetry—Today

OLD CATTLE MAN SOLILOQUIZES.

He rode by us this mornin' and he looked jest like a knight,
With his silver traps a-shinin' in the streaks of rosy light;
His pack horse trailed behind him, with a bed upon its back,
And he made a purty picture as he passed our homestead shack;
And we knowed that summer 'd hit us—knowed it past the slightest doubt—
Cause the calves were bein' gathered, and the roundup call was out.

The wagon top is shinin' in some distant lonely draw;
The cook is yellin' "Grub pile!"—you can hear the gang hurrah
As they leave the brandin' fire and gallop for the feed.
While the snow-white foam is drippin' from the mouth of every steed;
I'd like to throw in with 'em, but Father Time it seems,
Has put me in the discard—I can only live in dreams.

I can only dream of stretches where the cactus and the sage
Crown the rollin' hills of glory—neither time nor creepin' age
Can dim the youthful pictures that come up before my eyes,
When the first glad hint of June-time puts a new blue in the skies
And a top-hand, young and knightly passes by my cabin door
On his way to join his comrades where the roundup's on once more.

Goes to Pen For Lifetime

The case of William A. Potter, on trial for his life for the murder of George W. K. Martin in Circleville in March, came to an abrupt end Wednesday morning, when the court accepted a plea of murder in the second degree and sentenced the man to the Ohio penitentiary for life.

Doctors who examined the man submitted certificates to the effect that Potter was not sane. The man shot Martin in cold blood at the door of his (Potter) divorced wife's home, Martin having been to call on the woman.

GREW HAIR IN SIX WEEKS.

"Mary, have you read what Baroness Ramsey says about Mrs. Mason's Hair Treatment? In her letter which I saw she declares that it produced a considerable growth of hair in only six weeks."

"Yes, Grace, and lots of our best people here in Washington C. H. used to send to New York for Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream before Blackmer & Tanquary, our local druggists, took the agency for it."

"I am using it myself now, it is so easy to wash one's own hair with it and you know it produces a stimulating and luxurious lather which not only removes the dust, dirt, grit and dandruff from the hair and scalp, but at the same time you are rubbing the tonic properties of this famous herb shampoo into the roots of the hair, which stops it coming out and stimulates the growth—just as water does a plant. It makes the hair so beautifully clean, soft and fluffy that it looks twice as thick as it really is. A 25c. tube is sufficient for three or four shampoos and they offer to return your money if you don't like it."

Old "Sheepskin" Warns the Public

Among the papers of the late Solomon Johnson, is a notice issued by O. W. Shattuck, superintendent of the old Cincinnati & Zanesville Railroad Company (now the Pennsylvania), in which he warns the public that the company will not be responsible for bills incurred by its employees.

The notice was issued from Lancaster, Ohio, on February 1st, 1868, and ends with the information that all employees must "confine their expenditures within their means, and that thriftless habits, neglect of their families, dissipation" would be regarded as cause for discharge.

It is interesting to know that Michael O'Donnel, who makes his home at the Central house in this city, is probably the only man employed by the road at that time who is living in the city, and one of the very few in the state.

Former Deep Inland Sea Rich in Mineral Deposits

Another portion of the great geological map of the United States which the Geological Survey is constructing has just been completed and covers the area known as Bismarck quadrangle, in North Dakota. The area of this quadrangle is approximately 820 square miles.

During the remote period of the earth's history known as Cretaceous time North Dakota, along with the rest of the Great Plains region, was submerged beneath an interior sea. The earliest sediments of this ancient sea became the present rock formation known as the Dakota sandstone, which lies more than 2,000 feet below the surface of the Bismarck quadrangle. Other bodies of sediments were subsequently laid down in this sea, which finally withdrew from the region, the latter formations being deposited along the streams and in marshes and swamps. The vegetation which grew in these marshes resulted in the lignite (coal retaining the texture of wood) deposits which are today found in great beds underlying the area.

Great Trees and Huge Land Reptiles Flourished.

The fossils that have been found in the Bismarck quadrangle show that as many as 400 species of plants lived at this early time, among them being a Sequoia which is related to the giant redwood of California and the remains of which have been preserved in the rocks. During this period of mild climatic conditions when swamp vegetation flourished great land reptiles such as dinosaurs were abundant, especially the massive Triceratops, which must have roamed in large numbers along the shores of lake and swamp.

The principal mineral resources of the Bismarck quadrangle, besides the surface and underground water, are lignite, clay, gravel, and sand. When freshly mined the North Dakota lignite is usually lusterless and massive, but on exposure it rapidly breaks down or "slacks" into small shiny cubical blocks, and this tendency is one of the greatest obstacles to be overcome if the fuel is to be consumed in plants so located as to necessitate long hauls by rail or much handling of the material.

Analyses and producer-gas tests were made at the United States Geological Survey's fuel-testing plant in St. Louis of sample of lignite taken from a mine near Wilton, a short distance north of the Bismarck quadrangle, but as the lignite in this quadrangle is not essentially different the results are of value in showing the general nature and composition of the fuel. These analyses and tests made showed a surprising success with lignite in producer-gas plants.

The prediction of the government experts that the aggregate vote in 1912 will touch the 15,000,000 mark looks like a safe guess. In round figures the number was 11,381,000 in 1888, 12,044,000 in 1892 13,607,000 1896, 13,965,000; 1900, 13,530,000; in 1904, and 14,500,000 in 1908. A gain of only 500,000 would be needed to bring the aggregate for 1912 up to 15,000,000.

Probably the number will be higher than 15,000,000. Women have been given the ballot in Washington and California since 1908, and the experience in the latter state, at least, since suffrage came has been that it will be exercised by a large proportion of the sex. These two states ought alone to furnish 500,000 more votes than they polled four years ago. If, as seems to be probable, equal suffrage carries in the special election in Ohio in September, in which the new constitution is voted upon, very nearly 1,000,000 votes ought to be added to the 1908 figures from that state.

Allowing one male qualified voter to every five of the population, there would be a poll of 19,000,000 in 1912 from men only. Of course, several million persons who have the privilege of voting have remained away from the polls in all recent years. The excitement in that canvass made the number of these absentees relatively smaller in 1896 than in any other year in half a century. Possibly the public interest in the issues and the candidates will bring the proportion of the voters this year up to the 1896 mark. —St. Louis Globe.

Efficiency of Lignite as a Gas Producer.

The following statement has been made concerning the efficiency of North Dakota lignite in the gas-producer and gas engine:

"The result of the steam test was so unsatisfactory that there is nothing by which a direct comparison can be made of the efficiency of fuel used in the gas-producer as compared with the efficiency developed in the steam plant. Theoretically, a comparison of the obtained on other coals under steam boiler is instructive. The test shows that to produce one electric horse-power hour in the production of gas plant required 2.29 pounds of dry North Dakota lignite, whereas to produce the same result in steam plant required 3.32 pounds of the best West Virginia coal. This means that North Dakota lignite with the moisture eliminated, will do more work when used in a producer gas plant than the best coal of country will do in a steam plant."

A number of tests have been made by the fuel-testing plant of the Survey and later by the Bureau of Mines to determine the best method of briquetting North Dakota lignite. It has been found that the lignite can be briquetted, some of it without a binder, and that its efficiency is thereby materially increased. The briquetted product also stands up better and handling much better than the raw material.

Steaming tests have also been made with specially constructed boxes and grates and the results highly satisfactory, as the efficiency of this lignite when properly briquetted is so increased as to compare favorably with that of fuel of high grades.

This Dog Was Really Useful

Wednesday morning a well-dressed lady walked up the street, followed by a small dog. When it came necessary to cross the street the opposite side, the lady stepped out upon the slippery brick and dog immediately picked up the end of her skirts and prevented her from touching the dirty pavement, dropping the edge of the skirt on reaching the adjoining sidewalk. The dog then trotted along beside the lady and both eventually appeared in a store.

George Warfield, colored, aged 35 years, left this city last Saturday for Cincinnati, intending to be in the evening, but failed to do so and inquiry from this city developed the fact that Warfield was down by a street car on Sixth St. Saturday, and dangerously injured. Word from the hospital, received Wednesday, stated that he would be able to return to Washington Saturday.

Old "Sheepskin" Warns the Public

Among the papers of the late Solomon Johnson, is a notice issued by O. W. Shattuck, superintendent of the old Cincinnati & Zanesville Railroad Company (now the Pennsylvania), in which he warns the public that the company will not be responsible for bills incurred by its employees.

The notice was issued from Lancaster, Ohio, on February 1st, 1868, and ends with the information that all employees must "confine their expenditures within their means, and that thriftless habits, neglect of their families, dissipation" would be regarded as cause for discharge.

It is interesting to know that Michael O'Donnel, who makes his home at the Central house in this city, is probably the only man employed by the road at that time who is living in the city, and one of the very few in the state.

Former Deep Inland Sea Rich in Mineral Deposits

Another portion of the great geological map of the United States which the Geological Survey is constructing has just been completed and covers the area known as Bismarck quadrangle, in North Dakota. The area of this quadrangle is approximately 820 square miles.

During the remote period of the earth's history known as Cretaceous time North Dakota, along with the rest of the Great Plains region, was submerged beneath an interior sea. The earliest sediments of this ancient sea became the present rock formation known as the Dakota sandstone, which lies more than 2,000 feet below the surface of the Bismarck quadrangle. Other bodies of sediments were subsequently laid down in this sea, which finally withdrew from the region, the latter formations being deposited along the streams and in marshes and swamps. The vegetation which grew in these marshes resulted in the lignite (coal retaining the texture of wood) deposits which are today found in great beds underlying the area.

Great Trees and Huge Land Reptiles Flourished.

The fossils that have been found in the Bismarck quadrangle show that as many as 400 species of plants lived at this early time, among them being a Sequoia which is related to the giant redwood of California and the remains of which have been preserved in the rocks. During this period of mild climatic conditions when swamp vegetation flourished great land reptiles such as dinosaurs were abundant, especially the massive Triceratops, which must have roamed in large numbers along the shores of lake and swamp.

The principal mineral resources of the Bismarck quadrangle, besides the surface and underground water, are lignite, clay, gravel, and sand. When freshly mined the North Dakota lignite is usually lusterless and massive, but on exposure it rapidly breaks down or "slacks" into small shiny cubical blocks, and this tendency is one of the greatest obstacles to be overcome if the fuel is to be consumed in plants so located as to necessitate long hauls by rail or much handling of the material.

Analyses and producer-gas tests were made at the United States Geological Survey's fuel-testing plant in St. Louis of sample of lignite taken from a mine near Wilton, a short distance north of the Bismarck quadrangle, but as the lignite in this quadrangle is not essentially different the results are of value in showing the general nature and composition of the fuel. These analyses and tests made showed a surprising success with lignite in producer-gas plants.

The prediction of the government experts that the aggregate vote in 1912 will touch the 15,000,000 mark looks like a safe guess. In round figures the number was 11,381,000 in 1888, 12,044,000 in 1892, 13,607,000 in 1896, 13,965,000 in 1900, 13,530,000 in 1904, and 14,500,000 in 1908. A gain of only 500,000 would be needed to bring the aggregate for 1912 up to 15,000,000.

Probably the number will be higher than 15,000,000. Women have been given the ballot in Washington and California since 1908, and the experience in the latter state, at least, since suffrage came has been that it will be exercised by a large proportion of the sex. These two states ought alone to furnish 500,000 more votes than they polled four years ago. If, as seems to be probable, equal suffrage carries in the special election in Ohio in September, in which the new constitution is voted upon, very nearly 1,000,000 votes ought to be added to the 1908 figures from that state.

Allowing one male qualified voter to every five of the population, there would be a poll of 19,000,000 in 1912 from men only. Of course, several million persons who have the privilege of voting have remained away from the polls in all recent years. The excitement in that canvass made the number of these absentees relatively smaller in 1896 than in any other year in half a century. Possibly the public interest in the issues and the candidates will bring the proportion of the voters this year up to the 1896 mark. —St. Louis Globe.

Efficiency of Lignite as a Gas Producer.

The following statement has been made concerning the efficiency of North Dakota lignite in the gas-producer and gas engine:

"The result of the steam test was so unsatisfactory that there is nothing by which a direct comparison can be made of the efficiency of fuel used in the gas-producer plant as compared with the efficiency developed in the steam plant. Nevertheless, a comparison of the results obtained on other coals under steam boiler is instructive. The test shows that to produce one electrical horse-power hour in the producer gas plant required 2.29 pounds of dry North Dakota lignite, whereas to produce the same result in a steam plant required 3.39 pounds of the best West Virginia coal. It means that North Dakota lignite with the moisture eliminated, will more work when used in a producer gas plant than the best coal of country will do in a steam plant."

A number of tests have been made by the fuel-testing plant of the Bureau of Mines to determine the best method of briquetting North Dakota lignite. It has been found that the lignite can be briquetted, some of it without a binder, and that its efficiency is thereby materially increased. Briquetted product also stands better and handling much better than the raw material.

Steaming tests have also been made with specially constructed boxes and grates and the results highly satisfactory, as the efficiency of this lignite when properly briquetted is so increased as to compare favorably with that of fuel of high grades.

This Dog Was Really Useful

Wednesday morning a well-dressed lady walked up the street followed by a small dog. When it came necessary to cross the street the opposite side, the lady stepped out upon the slippery brick and dog immediately picked up the edge of her skirts and prevented her from touching the dirty pavement by dropping the edge of the skirts on reaching the adjoining sidewalk. The dog then trotted along with the lady and both eventually appeared in a store.

THE PLATFORM

What Democratic Party in Ohio Considers Good Government.

Toledo, O., June 6.—The platform, which was contained in the majority report of the resolutions committee, as adopted by the convention, is as follows:

"Be it resolved by the Democracy of the state of Ohio in convention assembled, That Governor Judson Harmon, having secured a majority vote at the Democratic preferential primary for the presidency and being entitled to choose the delegates-at-large under a resolution adopted previous to the primary by the Democratic state central committee, is hereby empowered and directed by this state convention to select and present for ratification by this convention, 12 delegates-at-large, with one-half vote each, who shall sit as delegates-at-large from Ohio at the Democratic national convention that convenes at Baltimore.

"The splendid record of constructive statesmanship made by the present Democratic national house of representatives has won the admiration of the nation and given proof that the party is in readiness for the larger power and responsibilities about to be conferred upon it.

"We favor the extension of the postal service by the federal government and endorse in substance the bill providing for a postal express now pending in congress, heretofore favorably reported by the interstate and foreign commerce commission of the house.

"In complete control of the legislative and executive power for the first time in 20 years, the Democratic party in Ohio in two years has a record of progressive and constructive achievement almost unparalleled in the history of American commonwealths; a record in signal contrast with that of the Republican oligarchy so long in control, which, in its alliance with privilege, has used the public treasury for the enrichment of its petty bosses and its captains of industry. Such a record entitles the Democracy to a continuation in power at the hands of the people of Ohio.

Point to Record.

"The Democratic party, in practical reaffirmation of its allegiance to the doctrine that all political power is inherent in the people has restored to them their weapons of self-defense through the initiative and referendum for cities and by giving them the direct nomination and election of United States senators; it has made possible the rehabilitation of the judiciary by the creation of a non-partisan ballot for the election of judges. For the first time in the history of Ohio railroad and other public service corporations are paying taxes upon the same basis as the farmer and home. By the enactment of a public utilities law the rates, service and capitalization of these giant corporations, so long free from public control, are being regulated. The limitations of the hours of labor for women and the establishment of a workman's compensation commission are an earnest desire of the Democracy to rescue those workers made helpless by industrial conditions and combinations. The control of the institutions of the state, long a source of scandal, inefficiency and divided responsibility, has been committed to a central board of administration in accordance with the modern principles of economic and efficient business management.

"The nonpartisan prosecution of bipartisan grafters, the inauguration of a system of competitive bidding for the use of the state funds, instead of placing these funds as theretofore, in the hands of favorite political friends; the enactment of a law to prevent corrupt practices at elections; the establishment of a reformatory for women and the introduction of agricultural instruction in the schools are evidences not only of the desire of the Democracy to serve, but also of its ability and competence to administer the state government in the interest of the people.

"The record of the past is the promise of the future.

"The Democratic party stands, first, for a restoration of the government to the people through direct legislation and through the simplification of the machinery of government so that the people may adequately express themselves and, second, for legislation looking to the abolition of privilege and to the restoration of equal opportunity to all.

"To this end we favor:

Favor Short Ballot.

"First, a short ballot in the selection of administrative officers, as a means for insuring greater scrutiny in the selection of public officials, and for fixing and centralizing responsibility.

"Second, separate ballots for state and national officers.

"Third, home rule for cities and villages, including the question of public or private ownership and operation of all public utilities.

"Fourth, the immediate valuation of the property, tangible and intangible, of all public utilities of this state, to the end that rates for service to the public shall be based on actual values and not on fictitious capitalization.

"Fifth, home rule for taxation.

"Sixth, the adoption of the proposed amendment to the constitution providing for the initiative and referendum in state matters.

"Seventh, a further reduction in the hours of labor for women and further restriction on the part of employment of children in workshops and factories.

"Eighth, the ratification of the proposed amendment to the federal constitution providing for the direct election of United States senators.

"Ninth, legislation looking to the improvement of the roads and highways of the state.

"Tenth, continuation in the reform in the conduct of the state's penal institutions which has been inaugurated. Abandonment of the present prison system. A new penitentiary should be built and conducted upon plans in accordance with the modern thought on this subject: Making the regeneration of prisoners the aim of the state.

Approve Harmon's Administration.

"We endorse and approve the administration of Governor Judson Harmon and the Democratic state officials as the best the state of Ohio has ever had and we invite the attention of the electorate to their achievements as a guarantee of the continuation of such faithful servants.

"We favor the regulation of the liquor traffic by license and strict control, when and where the people decide the traffic shall be lawful, and therefore urge the adoption of the license proposal as submitted by the constitutional convention.

"This convention fulfills the promise made without a dissenting vote by our immediate predecessors, the delegates who sat in the Democratic state convention of 1910 and pledged the Democratic party of Ohio to 'endorse and present Judson Harmon for the presidency in 1912.'

"This pledge was ratified by the voters of this state by a majority of over 100,000. His administration during the two intervening years justifies this confidence.

"Accordingly the delegates from Ohio to the national convention at Baltimore are instructed to give their loyal support in the effort to give Governor Judson Harmon the Democratic nomination for the presidency, and are further instructed to vote for him as a body as long as he permits his name to remain before the convention, or as long as a majority vote of the Ohio delegation shall so desire."

THE PLATFORM

What Democratic Party In Ohio Considers Good Government.

Toledo, O., June 6.—The platform, which was contained in the majority report of the resolutions committee, as adopted by the convention, is as follows:

"Be it resolved by the Democracy of the state of Ohio in convention assembled, That Governor Judson Harmon, having secured a majority vote at the Democratic preferential primary for the presidency and being entitled to choose the delegates-at-large under a resolution adopted previous to the primary by the Democratic state central committee, is hereby empowered and directed by this state convention to select and present for ratification by this convention, 12 delegates-at-large, with one-half vote each, who shall sit as delegates-at-large from Ohio at the Democratic national convention that convenes at Baltimore.

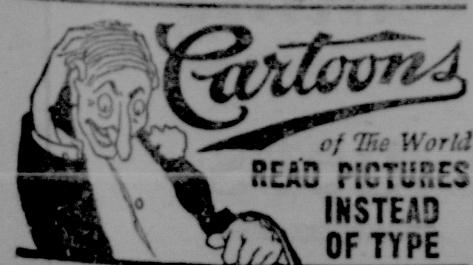

"The splendid record of constructive statesmanship made by the present Democratic national house of representatives has won the admiration of the nation and given proof that the party is in readiness for the larger power and responsibilities about to be conferred upon it.

"We favor the extension of the postal service by the federal government and endorse in substance the bill providing for a postal express now pending in congress, heretofore favorably reported by the interstate and foreign commerce commission of the house.

"In complete control of the legislative and executive power for the first time in 20 years, the Democratic party in Ohio in two years has a record of progressive and constructive achievement almost unparalleled in the history of American commonwealths; a record in signal contrast with that of the Republican oligarchy so long in control, which, in its alliance with privilege, has used the public treasury for the enrichment of its petty bosses and its captains of industry. Such a record entitles the Democracy to a continuation in power at the hands of the people of Ohio.

Point to Record.

doctrine that all political power is inherent in the people has restored to them their weapons of self-defense through the initiative and referendum for cities and by giving them the direct nomination and election of United States senators; it has made possible the rehabilitation of the judiciary by the creation of a non-partisan ballot for the election of judges. For the first time in the history of Ohio railroad and other public service corporations are paying taxes upon the same basis as the farmer and home. By the enactment of a public utilities law the rates, service and capitalization of these giant corporations, so long free from public control, are being regulated. The limitations of the hours of labor for women and the establishment of a workman's compensation commission are an earnest desire of the Democracy to rescue those workers made helpless by industrial conditions and combinations. The control of the institutions of the state, long a source of scandal, inefficiency and divided responsibility, has been committed to a central board of administration in accordance with the modern principles of economic and efficient business management.

"The nonpartisan prosecution of bipartisan grafters, the inauguration of a system of competitive bidding for the use of the state funds, instead of placing these funds as theretofore, in the hands of favorite political friends; the enactment of a law to prevent corrupt practices at elections; the establishment of a reformatory for women and the introduction of agricultural instruction in the schools are evidences not only of the desire of the Democracy to serve, but also of its ability and competence to administer the state government in the interest of the people.

"The record of the past is the promise of the future.

"The Democratic party stands, first, for a restoration of the government to the people through direct legislation and through the simplification of the machinery of government so that the people may adequately express themselves and, second, for legislation looking to the abolition of privilege and to the restoration of equal opportunity to all.

"To this end we favor:

Favor Short Ballot.

"First, a short ballot in the selection of administrative officers, as a means for insuring greater scrutiny in the selection of public officials, and for fixing and centralizing responsibility.

"Second, separate ballots for state and national officers.

"Third, home rule for cities and villages, including the question of public or private ownership and operation of all public utilities.

"Fourth, the immediate valuation of the property, tangible and intangible, of all public utilities of this state, to the end that rates for service to the public shall be based on actual values and not on fictitious capitalization.

"Fifth, home rule for taxation.

"Sixth, the adoption of the proposed amendment to the constitution providing for the initiative and referendum in state matters.

"Seventh, a further reduction in the hours of labor for women and further restriction on the part of employment of children in workshops and factories.

"Eighth, the ratification of the proposed amendment to the federal constitution providing for the direct election of United States senators.

"Ninth, legislation looking to the improvement of the roads and highways of the state.

"Tenth, continuation in the reform in the conduct of the state's penal institutions which has been inaugurated. Abandonment of the present prison system. A new penitentiary should be built and conducted upon plans in accordance with the modern thought on this subject: Making the regeneration of prisoners the aim of the state.

Approve Harmon's Administration.

"We endorse and approve the administration of Governor Judson Harmon and the Democratic state officials as the best the state of Ohio has ever had and we invite the attention of the electorate to their achievements as a guarantee of the continuation of such faithful servants.

"We favor the regulation of the liquor traffic by license and strict control, when and where the people decide the traffic shall be lawful, and therefore urge the adoption of the license proposal as submitted by the constitutional convention.

"This convention fulfills the promise made without a dissenting vote by our immediate predecessors, the delegates who sat in the Democratic state convention of 1910 and pledged the Democratic party of Ohio to 'endorse and present Judson Harmon for the presidency in 1912.'

"This pledge was ratified by the voters of this state by a majority of over 100,000. His administration during the two intervening years justifies this confidence.

"Accordingly the delegates from Ohio to the national convention at Baltimore are instructed to give their loyal support in the effort to give Governor Judson Harmon the Democratic nomination for the presidency, and are further instructed to vote for him as a body as long as he permits his name to remain before the convention, or as long as a majority vote of the Ohio delegation shall so desire."

Governor Harmon Tells Moore Farmers Responsible For Victory.

Columbus, O., June 6. — The only statement given out by Governor Harmon in regard to his victory at Toledo was as follows. In a telegram to his manager, E. H. Moore, the governor said:

"I am greatly pleased with the result. It is a splendid testimonial in face of the bitter fight made against me. The farmers were so busy when the primaries were held that the vote was light, but the voters turned out all over the state and elected delegates for me to the state convention.

"Wish I could put in words my appreciation of the devoted loyalty of yourself and my other friends. All I can do is try to deserve it."

LIFE'S DISAPPOINTMENTS

SPOILED A SPANISH PLOT.

Reward of Dutch Boys For Saving Amsterdam's Stock Exchange.

Of the many quaint and curious customs, traditions and privileges prevailing in Holland none is more extraordinary than a certain privilege that has been enjoyed by the boys of Amsterdam for nearly 300 years.

At a fixed time each summer these boys gather by the hundreds in the great square called the Dam, situated in the center of the city. Each boy has a drum slung over his shoulder.

Facing this square is the Stock Exchange, and on the occasion in question, just as soon as the day's business is over, as many of the boys as can crowd into the building. They proceed to the floor of the exchange, where, pursuant to this odd custom, they are permitted to march about, singing and beating upon their drums.

The origin of this custom, it is said, is as follows:

One afternoon in the year 1622 a crowd of boys playing in the Dam lost a ball in the canal that in those days skirted one side of the square. One of the lads, while climbing in among the piles on which the building stood, found instead of his ball a boat moored in a dark corner and loaded with boxes of gunpowder. This showed clearly enough, what was afterward ascertained with certainty, the intention of the Spanish conspirators to blow up the Stock Exchange while it was crowded, as it was every day, with the leading citizens of the city.

The boy who stumbled upon the gunpowder at once hurried to the town authorities with his news. The boatload of explosives was quietly sunk in the canal and the Spanish plot thus frustrated.

When the burgesses asked the boy what reward he desired for the service he had rendered the town he replied that so long as there was a stock exchange in Amsterdam the boys of the town would like to be permitted to make the floor of the exchange their playground during a certain part of the year. The request was granted, and so the custom survives.—New York Sun.

Nightcaps.

For external application the nightcap is rarely seen. It is first mentioned during the time of the Tudors. In the inventory of Henry VIII's wardrobe we come across the following item: "A nightcap of black velvet embroidered." No wonder that with such gear.

ing, as Shakespeare suggests, "uneasy rests the head that wears a crown." Poor old Bishop Latimer was not content with one nightcap. Fox in his "Book of Martyrs" describes him as follows: "He held his hat in his hand, having a handkerchief on his head and upon it a nightcap or two, and a great cap, such as townsmen use, with broad flaps to button under his chin." They evidently believed in keeping their heads warm in those days.

The Sailor's Toothbrush.

A bluff and coarse old time sea captain caught a sailor one morning cleaning his teeth with a toothbrush. The old man seized the brush, snapped it in two and tossed the pieces overboard. Then, his eyes flashing fire, he said:

"What are ye tryin' to do—corrupt the ship with this here effeminacy? Cleanin' yer teeth with a toothbrush! Why, ye swab, don't ye know that when an honest sailor wants to scrape the tobacco off his grinders he does it, like a man, with a marlinspike or a link of chain cable dipped in cinders outen the cook's galley?"—New York Tribune.

A Satirical Reward.

There was perhaps more satire than gratitude in the reward bestowed by a French lady on a surgeon for bleeding her—an operation in which the lancet was so clumsily used that an artery was severed and the poor woman bled to death. When she recognized that she was dying she made a will in which she left the operator a life annuity of 800 francs on condition "that he never again bleed anybody as long as he lives."

The Hunters.

"I'm going off on a hunting trip with Binks, Dawson and Bidad," said Hick enlooper.

"Fine!" said Wigley. "Big game or small?"

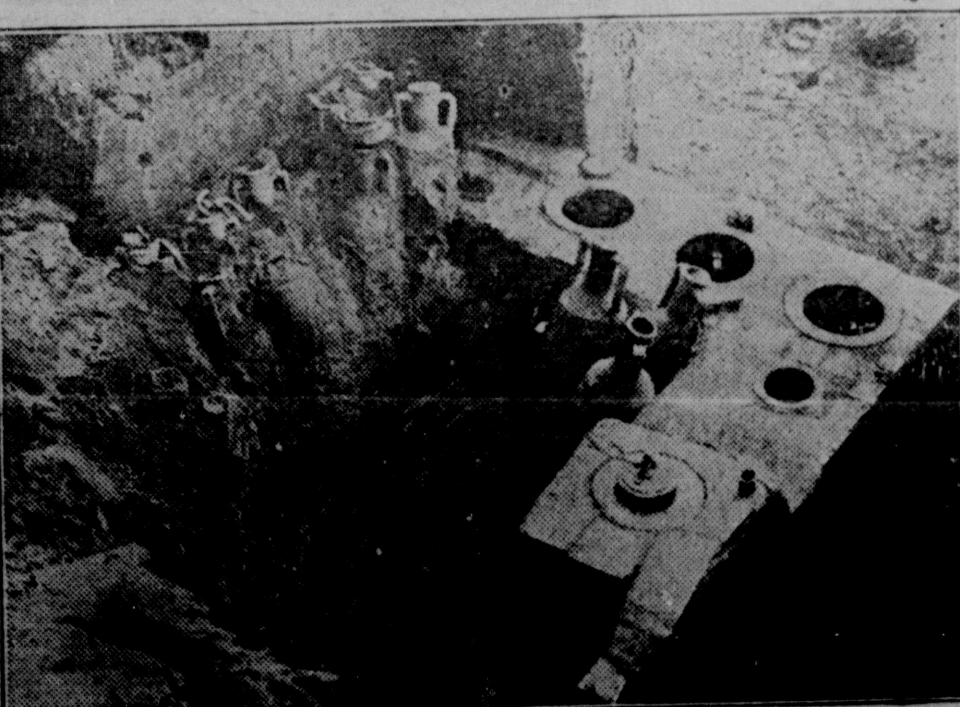

"Oh, we never go beyond the ten cent limit," said Hick enlooper. —Harper's Weekly.

Fast Color Too.

Mrs. Moneybags—Why do you apply for the position when I stated specially in my advertisement that I desired a colored chauffeur? White Applicant—Because, madam, I am quite sure that I could fill the position. I am very green.—Judge.

Roman Bar Found In Pompeii

Recent excavations in Pompeii have revealed a number of houses in the Street of Abundance, and a wine shop or bar. The latter has the customary counter, with holes for the terra cotta wine jars, and a raised piece of masonry holding a copper boiler with cover made to close hermetically, which rests above a square hole for the fire. Various wine jars lean against the wall, on the counter are copper coins, and a small square box of bone contains gold and silver coins.

THE TOP OF THE WORLD.

How an Explorer Would Know When He Was at the Pole.

The question arises in the mind of every one who is not an expert in using measuring instruments, "How do the explorers know when they are standing on the rotating point of the world?"

Perhaps there is a queer sensation when one is standing on the exact spot, but then no one has located either pole with such exactness. One can, however, discover one's nearness to this interesting point by several methods.

First one can measure the height of the sun above the horizon. When one is standing on the pole the sun circles round the observer during the whole twenty-four hours. It does not perceptibly rise or fall during the day. It just goes right round at a certain height, which varies according to the season.

You measure the sun's height above the horizon Dec. 14 at noon, at midnight and so forth. The angle you obtain is the angle which you should obtain for your supposed position. To make sure, you remain there two or three days so that errors of measurement can be corrected.

Also you can measure your shadow or the shadow of a pole during the whole twenty-four hours. If the length of this shadow varies by even an inch or so you are not at the pole. It must describe a perfect circle about the center.

The most exact measurements are obtained by theodolites. Sextants are not so accurate.—London Sphere.

Named All Their Women Maria.

Socotra, an island in the Indian ocean, was for many centuries a place dreaded by the mariner. In the tenth century it was notorious as a pirate haunt, and one devout authority described its inhabitants as "Nestorian Christians and pirates." It was also a regular station for the Indian corsairs who preyed on the trade with the far east. At an earlier date Socotra had been noted as the chief insense producing land and as such was known to the ancient Egyptians. Among the curious customs of the Socotrans of the seventeenth century was that of naming all their women Maria.

Johnson's Definitions.

Dr. Johnson perpetrated many jokes in his dictionary, but among his most famous blunders was his definition of "pastern" as "the knee of a horse." Dr. Johnson defined oats as "a grain which in England is generally given to horses, but in Scotland supports the people." He defined "pensioner" as "a slave of state, hired by a stipend to obey his master," which definition was made much of by the doctor's enemies when he himself was awarded a pension.

A Strong Hand.

"You was a big loser when de game broke up, wasn't you?"
 "Yes. Dat's why it broke up."
 "Was it a good hand dat won de last pot?"
 "It shore was. When it landed it felt like it mus' o' weighed a ton."—Washington Star.

Qualified.

"What! You marry my daughter," thundered old Roxley—"you, a mere clerk!"

"No, sir," replied young Hunter, "not a clerk, but a gentleman now I resigned my job the moment your daughter accepted me."—Philadelphia Press

KNOUT AND NAME

About All That Now Remain of the Original Cossacks.

CODE OF THE FIRST TRIBES.

One Class Lived in the Villages, the Other in a Sort of Monastery, and All Were Free Warriors, Self Appointed Guardians of the People.

Wherever Russia has a fight on hand there bobs up promptly to do her bidding the Cossack. This right arm of the czar has not the best of reputations. Illustrated papers picture him a savage scarecrow mounted on a wiry looking animal, and his chief occupation is apparently the knifing and knouting of harmless people. Yet he comes of good stock.

Once upon a time there drifted into southwest Russia a tribe of runaways who called themselves "Kossaki," which is Tartar for free men, free warriors or guardians. Seemingly they lived up to the name. They protected from the Tartars the peoples in the countries which they originally had fled from and saved thousands of Russian women and children from slavery in Turkey. Growing in numbers and importance, these self appointed guardian angels became everywhere feared and respected. Their military services especially were in request. Any nation could command their help if its cause appealed to the Kossaki code of honor.

The tribe had gradually resolved itself into two classes—the village Kossaki, who lived in their own settlements all over southern Russia, and the inhabitants of the "Setch beyond the rapids." The former had the advantage over other country folk, as neighboring governments were too afraid to tax them. Between wars, to which the call came from the Setch, the village Kossaki tilled the land. Of an altogether different character was the organization of this Setch, a community of about 12,000 men with permanent headquarters in a movable settlement (the exact location was changed eight times in two centuries), usually on an unapproachable island on the lower course of the Dnieper. The Turks once tried to rush the place, but got caught in the maze of islands like rats in a trap.

The Setch in one respect resembled a monastery. No woman was allowed inside it. A man might not even bring his mother or his sister. If he did he was hanged. Here, eager to lead the free and simple life among their equals, came all sorts and conditions of men. Indeed, owing to the law enjoining celibacy, the colony depended for its numbers on newcomers, although the village Kossaki contributed recruits. Any one could join, as rank and riches were despised, and all he had to do was to submit to laws as follows: Chastity, the orthodox creed, allegiance to Russia and the south Russian dialect. No reference or inconvenient questions of his past were asked of the intending Kossak. He simply went to the elected chief and, after a brief greeting, was shown to his place in one of the "kuren," or big huts. "Here is thy home, three paces long and two paces wide, and when thou shalt die we will make it smaller."

They had good times, though, in the Setch. There were no maneuvers, no organized training, no compulsory drill. Men lay or slept in the leveled spaces between huts, enjoying, gypsy fashion, the freedom of the open air. Drink was plentiful and also tobacco. Great songs were sung, and there was much playing of stringed instruments. Throughout the place a spirit of good comradeship prevailed. A popular pastime was dancing, no easy task in cumbersome high boots. Costumes were of a picturesque variety.

The Kossak wore a mustache and on the crown of his head a lonesome wisp of hair, both being worn long to enable him to wind the three ends round his ears. Each man went armed to the teeth, and the majority carried "nagalkas" (whips which are still used).

In wartime things were different. To drink was a crime. Food always. Want ads are profitable.

tain, consisted of rations of uncooked horseflesh. Military organization was by election of leaders, one to every 100 men, with a colonel in command of a regiment. These officers had absolute power, but authority for only one campaign. Such war spells were of frequent occurrence, so much so that the fighting business led to the extinction of the tribe. Peter the Great laid waste the Setch. Mazeppa made himself unpleasant. The Setch was again bombarded and ruined when its inhabitants became, some of them plowmen, while others were shipped to the orient. True, there was a brief reappearance of the Setch, but under different auspices and nothing like in old times. Finally the Kossaki lands were confiscated, and the tribe and its institutions gave place to serfdom and the creation of a new nobility. The Cossack of today inherits little of the old traditions but the name and the whip.—Harper's Weekly.

SPOILED A SPANISH PLOT.

Reward of Dutch Boys For Saving Amsterdam's Stock Exchange.

Of the many quaint and curious customs, traditions and privileges prevailing in Holland none is more extraordinary than a certain privilege that has been enjoyed by the boys of Amsterdam for nearly 300 years.

At a fixed time each summer these boys gather by the hundreds in the great square called the Dam, situated in the center of the city. Each boy has a drum slung over his shoulder.

Facing this square is the Stock Exchange, and on the occasion in question, just as soon as the day's business is over, as many of the boys as can crowd into the building. They proceed to the floor of the exchange, where, pursuant to this odd custom, they are permitted to march about, singing and beating upon their drums.

The origin of this custom, it is said, is as follows:

One afternoon in the year 1622 a crowd of boys playing in the Dam lost a ball in the canal that in those days skirted one side of the square. One of the lads, while climbing in among the piles on which the building stood, found instead of his ball a boat moored in a dark corner and loaded with boxes of gunpowder. This showed clearly enough, what was afterward ascertained with certainty, the intention of the Spanish conspirators to blow up the Stock Exchange while it was crowded, as it was every day, with the leading citizens of the city.

The boy who stumbled upon the gunpowder at once hurried to the town authorities with his news. The boatload of explosives was quietly sunk in the canal and the Spanish plot thus frustrated.

When the burgesses asked the boy what reward he desired for the service he had rendered the town he replied that so long as there was a stock exchange in Amsterdam the boys of the town would like to be permitted to make the floor of the exchange their playground during a certain part of the year. The request was granted, and so the custom survives.—New York Sun.

Nightcaps.

For external application the nightcap is rarely seen. It is first mentioned during the time of the Tudors. In the inventory of Henry VIII's wardrobe we come across the following item: "A nightcap of black velvet embroidered." No wonder that with such gear.

ing, as Shakespeare suggests, "uncasy rests the head that wears a crown." Poor old Bishop Latimer was not content with one nightcap. Fox in his "Book of Martyrs" describes him as follows: "He held his hat in his hand, having a handkerchief on his head and upon it a nightcap or two and a great cap, such as townsmen use, with broad flaps to button under his chin." They evidently believed in keeping their heads warm in those days.

The Sailor's Toothbrush.

A bluff and coarse old time sea captain caught a sailor one morning cleaning his teeth with a toothbrush. The old man seized the brush, snapped it in two and tossed the pieces overboard. Then, his eyes flashing fire, he said:

"What are ye tryin' to do—corrupt the ship with this here effeminacy? Cleanin' yer teeth with a toothbrush! Why, ye swab, don't ye know that when an honest sailor wants to scrape the tobacco off his grinders he does it, like a man, with a marlin'spike or a link of chain cable dipped in cinders outen the cook's galley?"—New York Tribune.

A Satirical Reward.

There was perhaps more satire than gratitude in the reward bestowed by a French lady on a surgeon for bleeding her—an operation in which the lancet was so clumsily used that an artery was severed and the poor woman bled to death. When she recognized that she was dying she made a will in which she left the operator a life annuity of 800 francs on condition "that he never again bleeds anybody as long as he lives."

The Hunters.

"I'm going off on a hunting trip with Binks, Dawson and Biddad," said Hickenlooper.

"Fine!" said Wigley. "Big game or small?"

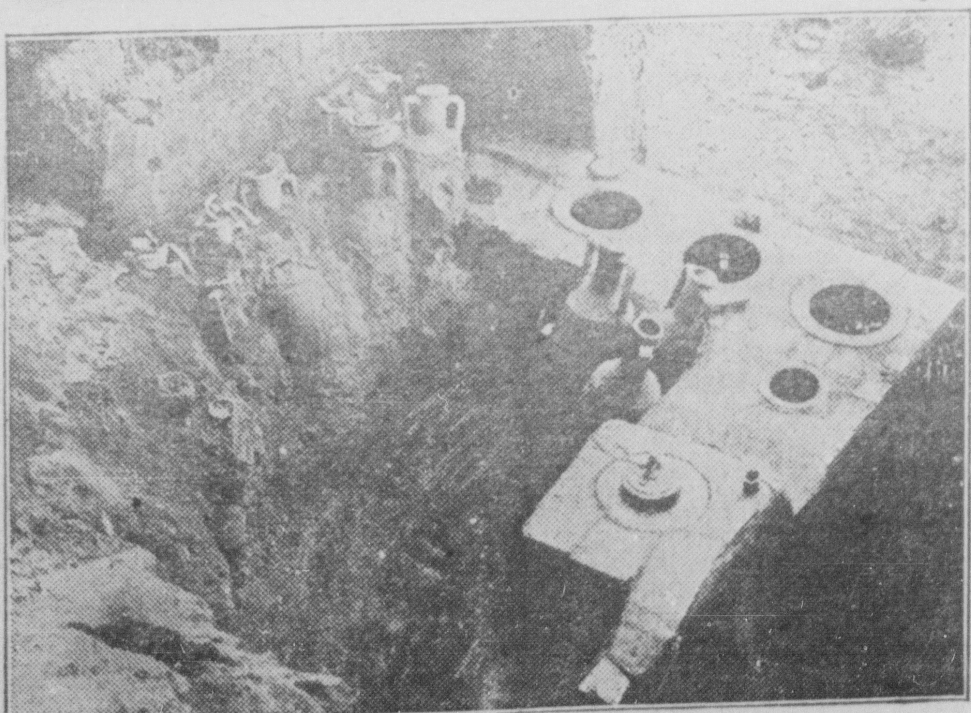

"Oh, we never go beyond the ten cent limit," said Hickenlooper.—Harper's Weekly.

Fast Color Too.

Mrs. Moneybags—Why do you apply for the position when I stated specially in my advertisement that I desired a colored chauffeur? White Applicant—Because, madam, I am quite sure that I could fill the position. I am very green.—Judge.

Roman Bar Found In Pompeii

Recent excavations in Pompeii have revealed a number of houses in the Street of Abundance, and a wine shop or bar. The latter has the customary counter, with holes for the terra cotta wine jars, and a raised piece of masonry holding a copper boiler with cover made to close hermetically, which rests above a square hole for the fire. Various wine jars lean against the wall, on the counter are copper coins, and a small square box of bone contains gold and silver coins.

Any nation could command their help if its cause appealed to the Kossaki code of honor.

The tribe had gradually resolved itself into two classes—the village Kossaki, who lived in their own settlements all over southern Russia, and the inhabitants of the "Setch" beyond the rapids. The former had the advantage over other country folk, as neighboring governments were too afraid to tax them. Between wars, to which the call came from the Setch, the village Kossaki tilled the land. Of an altogether different character was the organization of this Setch, a community of about 12,000 men with permanent headquarters in a movable settlement (the exact location was changed eight times in two centuries), usually on an unapproachable island on the lower course of the Dnieper. The Turks once tried to rush the place, but got caught in the maze of islands like rats in a trap.

The Setch in one respect resembled a monastery. No woman was allowed inside it. A man might not even bring his mother or his sister. If he did he was hanged. Here, eager to lead the tree and simple life among their equals, came all sorts and conditions of men. Indeed, owing to the law enjoining celibacy, the colony depended for its numbers on newcomers, although the village Kossaki contributed recruits. Any one could join, as rank and riches were despised, and all he had to do was to submit to laws as follows: Chastity, the orthodox creed, allegiance to Russia and the south Russian dialect. No reference or inconvenient questions of his past were asked of the intending Kossak. He simply went to the elected chief and, after a brief greeting, was shown to his place in one of the "kuren," or big huts. "Here is thy home, three paces long and two paces wide, and when thou shalt die we will make it smaller."

They had good times, though, in the Setch. There were no maneuvers, no organized training, no compulsory drill. Men lay or slept in the leveled spaces between huts, enjoying, gypsy fashion, the freedom of the open air. Drink was plentiful and also tobacco. Great songs were sung, and there was much playing of stringed instruments. Throughout the place a spirit of good comradeship prevailed. A popular pastime was dancing, no easy task in cumbersome high boots. Costumes were of a picturesque variety.

The Kossak wore a mustache and on the crown of his head a lonesome wisp of hair, both being worn long to enable him to wind the three ends round his ears. Each man went armed to the teeth, and the majority carried "nagaitas" (whips which are still used).

In wartime things were different. To drink was a crime. Food always was scarce.

tain, consisted of rations of uncooked horseflesh. Military organization was by election of leaders, one to every 100 men, with a colonel in command of a regiment. These officers had absolute power, but authority for only one campaign. Such war spells were of frequent occurrence, so much so that the fighting business led to the extinction of the tribe. Peter the Great said waste the Setch. Mazeppa made himself unpleasant. The Setch was again bombarded and ruined when its inhabitants became, some of them plowmen, while others were shipped to the orient. True, there was a brief reappearance of the Setch, but under different auspices and nothing like in old times. Finally the Kossaki lands were confiscated, and the tribe and its institutions gave place to serfdom and the creation of a new nobility. Utah Great Coal Producing State Strode Condemns "Butter Mergers"

The production of coal in Utah in 1911, according to figures compiled by E. W. Parker, just made public by the United States Geological Survey was 2,513,175 short tons, having a spot value of $4,248,666.

This production was about the same as in 1910, the difference being less than 5,000 tons. The value increased $24,110, or a little more than 0.5 per cent. That the production did not show a larger decrease and that the value showed any increase at all was due to developments in Emery County which nearly trebled its production of 1910, 40,657 tons, the output in 1911 being 120,000 tons. The average price for the Emery County product advanced from $1.98 a ton in 1910 to $2.09 in 1911. All the other counties showed decreased production in 1911, and Carbon County, by far the most important producer, showed also a slight decline in price. Summit and Uinta counties had decreased tonages but higher prices. In addition to being the most important coal-producing county of the state, Carbon County is the only one in which coke is made. In 1911 a total of 381,696 tons of coal, an increase of 113,891 tons over 1910, was made into coke in Carbon County.

Returns from mining companies representing 90 per cent of the total coal production of the state show that although less than 2 per cent of the output in 1911 was mined by machines, the practice of shooting from the solid has not obtained a strong foothold in Utah. Out of 2,256,979 short tons from which the methods of mining were reported 1,993,574 short tons were undercut or sheared by hand and 70,653 tons mined by machines. The quantity shot off the solid was 192,752 short tons, or about 7.7 per cent of the total output of the state. In spite of the small proportion of coal undercut by machines, the average tonnage won by the miners is considerably above the average bituminous production per man for the United States.

Labor troubles are not of frequent occurrence in the coal mines of Utah, and in this respect 1911 was consistent with the rule. Only one suspension of work because of dissatisfaction with conditions was reported. The miners affected were idle but three days. The miners are practically all worked eight hours a day.

The men employed in the coal mines of Utah in 1911 numbered 3,060, who worked an average of 236 days. The average production for each man employed was 821.3 tons in 1911.

The Ninth United States Census recorded the first production of coal in Utah an output of 5,800 tons. Ten years later the production amounted to less than 15,000 tons. It assumed some importance in 1882, when the production amounted to 100,000 tons and it reached the million-ton mark in 1900. In 1909 it exceeded 2,000,000 tons.

The following figures show the growth of the industry:

Production of coal in Utah in short tons.
1882	100,000	1907	1,947,607
1890	318,159	1908	1,846,792

A Characteristic Platform Attitude of Colonel Roosevelt

IF Colonel Roosevelt has not been having "the time of his life" in the presidential primary campaign he has probably come pretty near it, for no man in public life today has so keen a relish for the joys of conflict. With tireless energy he has journeyed east and west, north and south, in his efforts to persuade the voters that he is the candidate who can lead the progressives to victory and has addressed nearly as many audiences in the preliminary contest as he did during the campaign that ended in his election. Popular Young Athlete Meets With Misfortune

Ed Cook, the young man who is sincerely admired by every Chillicothean, had a run of hard luck Monday, in that he sprained his right ankle while pole vaulting, in practice for the Olympic International games try-outs.

The sprain may interfere seriously with Ed's chances in the big events at Chicago on Saturday and if the injury should cause him to fail to qualify it will certainly be bad.

Not many Chillicotheans really realize the importance of being able to claim such a citizen as Edward Cook. When he was in his prime, many simply regarded him as a school boy and gave little thought to the fact that his unusual development along perfect ideas of health had made him one of the country's most prominent athletes. And also the fact that he was a Chillicothe boy, and as such was advertising this city by his ability, really amounted to something.

It isn't every man who has the chance to be chosen the head of track athletes of such a great college as Cornell and has the stamina to turn it down because he feels that his place is at home developing his father's farm.

In 1908, four years ago, in London, Ed. competed in the Olympic games, where the very best athletes of all the world, teams selected from the prime manhood of every nation contest.

Here, our Chillicothe boy tied for the world's record in the pole vault, a new mark being established. These international games are held every four years and this year the meeting will be at Stockholm in Sweden from July 7 to 15.

The trials for competitors to qualify for the team to represent the United States are now being held all over the country and those for this section will be in Chicago on Saturday of this week. Anyone is eligible to enter these contests but of course only trained athletes have any chance of success.

Our representative is entered in the pole vault, broad jump and the 100 metre high hurdles for the trials but his sprained ankle will probably unfit him for any event but the pole vault and may interfere with his work in that.

Ed. has kept himself in perfect condition all his life, however, and is feeling fine now, with the exception of his bad ankle, and his physical condition will be very much in his favor. He is going to Chicago Thursday hoping to qualify in the Saturday events and Chillicotheans will all be "hunching" for him that day.—Chillicothe Advertiser.

Strode Condemns "Butter Mergers"

The state dairy and food department warns persons who have purchased a small machine known as the butter merger, that the product of this machine cannot be sold as butter, because it would not contain more than forty or forty five per cent of butter fat, while the national standard for butter is eighty-two and one-half per cent. This merger butter will not meet any test, either under the national or state laws, and the least penalty for selling this adulterated butter is $25.00, providing it contains no artificial coloring matter.

The function of this butter merger is to combine butter and sweet milk in such manner as to produce an imitation butter, doubling the quantity of the original butter used. When the original butter has been artificially colored, or when coloring matter is added in the process of merging, the person responsible for the making of this so-called merged butter, is designed as a manufacturer of oleomargarine, and whether he sells this merged butter or not he is liable to a fine of not less than $100.00 or more than $500.00.

Any one not the maker of this merged butter who sells it or offers it for sale, if it is artificially colored, is subject to a fine of not less than $50.00 nor more than $100.00.

The public is cautioned that the penalty is very severe for selling or offering for sale dairy products that do not comply with the legal standards, and merged butter is a product that does not comply with the law in any respect.

State Dairy and Food Commissioner Strode also calls the attention of proprietors and managers of hotels, restaurants and lunch rooms to the provision of the law requiring cards not less than ten by fourteen inches in size, containing the words, "Oleomargarine Sold and Used Here" printed in black Roman type not less than two inches high, to be conspicuously posted in hotels and other places where oleomargarine is sold or used.

The department has prosecuted many violators of this law, and as some persons interested may still be in ignorance of its provisions, this warning is given in the hope of increasing compliance with it and reducing the necessity of prosecution.

Popular Young Athlete Meets With Misfortune

Ed Cook, the young man who is sincerely admired by every Chillicothean, had a run of hard luck Monday, in that he sprained his right ankle while pole vaulting, in practice for the Olympic International games try-outs.

The sprain may interfere seriously with Ed's chances in the big events at Chicago on Saturday and if the injury should cause him to fail to qualify it will certainly be bad.

Not many Chillicotheans really realize the importance of being able to claim such a citizen as Edward Cook. When he was in his prime, many simply regarded him as a school boy and gave little thought to the fact that his unusual development along perfect ideas of health had made him one of the country's most prominent athletes. And also the fact that he was a Chillicothe boy, and as such was advertising this city by his ability, really amounted to something.

It isn't every man who has the chance to be chosen the head of track athletes of such a great college as Cornell and has the stamina to turn it down because he feels that his place is at home developing his father's farm.

In 1908, four years ago, in London, Ed. competed in the Olympic games, where the very best athletes of all the world, teams selected from the prime manhood of every nation contest.

Here, our Chillicothe boy tied for the world's record in the pole vault, a new mark being established.

These international games are held every four years and this year the meeting will be at Stockholm in Sweden from July 7 to 15.

The trials for competitors to qualify for the team to represent the United States are now being held all over the country and those for this section will be in Chicago on Saturday of this week. Anyone is eligible to enter these contests but of course only trained athletes have any chance of success.

Our representative is entered in the pole vault, broad jump and the 100 metre high hurdles for the trials but his sprained ankle will probably unfit him for any event but the pole vault and may interfere with his work in that.

Ed. has kept himself in perfect condition all his life, however, and is feeling fine now, with the exception of his bad ankle, and his physical condition will be very much in his favor. He is going to Chicago Thursday hoping to qualify in the Saturday events and Chillicotheans will all be "hunching" for him that day.—Chillicothe Advertiser.

DO HIS CUFFS NEED A SHAVE?

Ever notice sometimes a man's cuffs have whiskers? His collar, too? Know what does that? The shirt and collar have been washed with yellow soap, full of rosin and strong caustics, and between them they can eat and rot the finest linen ever made. Try a cake of Easy Task Laundry Soap. It is a friend to fabrics and an enemy to dirt. It doesn't cost a whit more than the bad kinds of soaps, but it pays for itself ten times over in the saving of clothes and trouble and health.

Utah Great Coal Producing State

The production of coal in Utah in 1911, according to figures compiled by E. W. Parker, just made public by the United States Geological Survey was 2,513,175 short tons, having a spot value of $4,248,666.

This production was about the same as in 1910, the difference being less than 5,000 tons. The value increased $24,110, or a little more than 0.5 per cent. That the production did not show a larger decrease and that the value showed any increase at all was due to developments in Emery County which nearly trebled its production of 1910, 40,657 tons, the output in 1911 being 120,000 tons. The average price for the Emery County product advanced from $1.98 a ton in 1910 to $2.09 in 1911. All the other counties showed decreased production in 1911, and Carbon County, by far the most important producer, showed also a slight decline in price. Summit and Uinta counties had decreased tonages but higher prices. In addition to being the most important coal-producing county of the state, Carbon County is the only one in which coke is made. In 1911 a total of 381,636 tons of coal, an increase of 113,891 tons over 1910, was made into coke in Carbon County.

Returns from mining companies representing 90 per cent of the total coal production of the state show that although less than 2 per cent of the output in 1911 was mined by machines, the practice of shooting from the solid has not obtained a strong foothold in Utah. Out of 2,256,979 short tons from which the methods of mining were reported 1,993,574 short tons were undercut or sheared by hand and 70,653 tons mined by machines. The quantity shot off the solid was 192,752 short tons, or about 7.4 per cent of the total output of the state. In spite of the small proportion of coal undercut by machines, the average tonage won by the miners is considerably above the average bituminous production per man for the United States.

Labor troubles are not of frequent occurrence in the coal mines of Utah, and in this respect 1911 was consistent with the rule. Only one suspension of work because of dissatisfaction with conditions was reported. The miners affected were idle but three days. The miners are practically all worked eight hours a day.

The men employed in the coal mines of Utah in 1911 numbered 3,060, who worked an average of 236 days. The average production for each man employed was 821.3 tons in 1911.

The Ninth United States Census recorded the first production of coal in Utah an output of 5,500 tons. Ten years later the production amounted to less than 15,000 tons. It assumed some importance in 1882, when the production amounted to 100,000 tons and it reached the million-ton mark in 1900. In 1909 it exceeded 2,000,000 tons.

Strode Condemns "Butter Mergers"

The state dairy and food department warns persons who have purchased a small machine known as the butter merger, that the product of this machine cannot be sold as butter, because it would not contain more than forty or forty-five per cent of butter fat, while the national standard for butter is eighty-two and one-half per cent. This merger butter will not meet any test, either under the national or state laws, and the least penalty for selling this adulterated butter is $25.00, providing it contains no artificial coloring matter.

The function of this butter merger is to combine butter and sweet milk in such manner as to produce an imitation butter, doubling the quantity of the original butter used. When the original butter has been artificially colored, or when coloring matter is added in the process of merging, the person responsible for the making of this so-called merged butter, is designed as a manufacturer of oleomargarine, and whether he sells this merged butter or not he is liable to a fine of not less than $100.00 or more than $500.00.

Any one not the maker of this merged butter who sells it or offers it for sale, if it is artificially colored, is subject to a fine of not less than $50.00 nor more than $100.00.

The public is cautioned that the penalty is very severe for selling or offering for sale dairy products that do not comply with the legal standards, and merged butter is a product that does not comply with the law in any respect.

State Dairy and Food Commissioner Strode also calls the attention of proprietors and managers of hotels, restaurants and lunch rooms to the provision of the law requiring cards not less than ten by fourteen inches in size, containing the words, "Oleomargarine Sold and Used Here" printed in black Roman type not less than two inches high, to be conspicuously posted in hotels and other places where oleomargarine is sold or used.

The department has prosecuted many violators of this law, and as some persons interested may still be in ignorance of its provisions, this warning is given in the hope of increasing compliance with it and reducing the necessity of prosecution.

IF Colonel Roosevelt has not been having "the time of his life" in the presidential primary campaign he has probably come pretty near it, for no man in public life today has so keen a relish for the joys of conflict. With tireless energy he has journeyed east and west, north and south, in his efforts to persuade the voters that he is the candidate who can lead the progressives to victory and has addressed nearly as many audiences in the preliminary contest as he did during the campaign that ended in his election. One of the most amusing incidents of the New Jersey primary campaign was the plea of the enthusiastic farmer who, when the colonel motioned for silence, shouted, "Wait a minute, Teddy, while we holler!" The photograph here reproduced shows the ex-president in one of his characteristic platform attitudes.
